Cabinet Announcements Wait Until March 4 but News Begins to Leak Out

MAY AFFECT DONOVAN

Will Be Difficult for Hoover to Choose Two Men from Same State

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1929, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington — Herbert Hoover's cabinet probably will not be definitely known until March 4. The president-elect is taking his time about selecting cabinet officers and is also withholding announcement on those he has chosen.

Only in indirect ways, such as arrangements for termination of business connections or through other channels will news leak out. This seems to have been the case with the selection of Colonel Henry Stimson, governor-general of the Philippines, who is slated for the secretaryship of state.

Practically the same thing occurred with the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson. Not until the day before inauguration was it known, for instance, that David F. Houston was to be secretary of agriculture and the appointment of a secretary of interior was not corroborated till the closing days of the Taft administration.

Inasmuch as it is not necessary for Mr. Hoover to send to the senate the names of cabinet officers who hold over, it will be difficult to tell till the usual extra session of the senate is convened on March 4, who the new cabinet officers really will be. The only cabinet officer whose nomination must be confirmed with every new president is the postmaster general. Thus Harry Newcomb was confirmed three times—once when Mr. Harding nominated him, a second time when Mr. Coolidge took the oath of office and a third time when Mr. Coolidge was elected in his own right and inaugurated in March 1925. Mr. Mellon was confirmed by the senate in March 1921 and his nomination has not been taken to the senate since. The same is true of the secretary of labor, James J. Davis.

STATUTES DEFINITE
The season for this is that the statutes specify that a postmaster general must be confirmed with each new president but there is no such requirements with other cabinet officers.

In other words a cabinet officer is not appointed under a particular term. The statute is true of assistant secretaries who are once nominated and confirmed by the senate and of many other appointive positions.

The definite announcement that Henry Stimson will be secretary of state is expected at any time now. It is important because of the important bearing it may have upon the selection of Colonel William Donovan as attorney general. It has been pointed out that Mr. Hoover will not take two cabinet officers from the same state but the president-elect has no such objections.

If he failed to select Colonel Donovan it will be the biggest surprise of the whole pre-inauguration period. Mr. Donovan is being opposed on the ground that he is a wet and a Catholic. He has been a close personal friend and adviser of Mr. Hoover and most people here believe he will ultimately be in the Hoover cabinet as Secretary of War or Navy if not as attorney general.

Flu Spreads Over Nearly All Europe

Many of France's Most Notable Personages Are Victims of Epidemic

London—(AP)—Thousands were ill in Europe Tuesday as a result of an epidemic of influenza from which few localities were spared. In France some of the most notable figures of public life were among those afflicted.

In Paris the victims included President Doumergue, Premier Raymond Poincare and his ministers, Aristide Briand and Georges Leygues. Their cases were mild, but there was a more serious aspect to that of Marshal Foch, where influenza had complicated a prior heart and kidney ailment.

Others on the sick list in Paris were Marshal Henri Petain, and Sir William G. Tyrrell, British Ambassador. G. Parker, Gilbert, agent general of reparations, was better after an attack of the disease.

In England Dame Nellie Melba, famous prima donna, was recovering from the malady. Hospitals in Paris were taxed to capacity with influenza patients; Berlin's public works and department stores reported heavy sick lists. This was the case, too, in London. In Prague, Czechoslovakia, the epidemic was on the wane after striking low more than one in every five. Although there have been deaths most centers reported that mortality had been comparatively low.

IN MIDST OF COLD
The epidemic was accompanied Tuesday by continuation of the bitterly cold weather which has gripped Europe and Asia from the Yellow sea to the British Isles.

Some parts of central and southeastern Europe particularly were suffering. Several deaths were reported from the Balkans, Constantinople and south Russia. At Belgrade, Yugoslavia, the temperature reached 25 degrees below zero, and a passenger train which left the city Sunday for Zagar was buried under 20 feet of snow.

At Prague, Czechoslovakia, the lowest temperature in 157 years was recorded. The whole country was covered with a blanket of snow and relief expeditions were organized for a number of villages. Famine-stricken wolves attacked other isolated towns.

FOCH DOESN'T GAIN
Paris—(AP)—Marshal Foch was able to get some sleep Monday night after an attack of indigestion had disturbed his earlier hours, his physicians, Drs. Daveniere and Heitzboyer, said Tuesday morning. The attack left the marshal tired and with an increased temperature, they said. His general condition was described as stationary.

While the physicians were extremely guarded in their discussion of the case it was learned that new kidney complications which might bring on a new crisis are feared.

HORSESHOE CHAMPION NEAR LOSING CROWN

St. Petersburg, Fla.—(AP)—The crown of C. C. Davis, Columbus, Ohio, world's champion horseshoe pitcher, was shaky here Monday in the opening round of the annual mid-winter tournament.

The champion engaged in three games and emerged winner in two, while Blair Nunemaker, Cleveland, Ohio, Bert Durney, Wichita, Kas., and Harvey Emerson of Kenosha, Wisconsin, champion, came through with clean records.

Davis went down in defeat first before the flying shoes of "Pitt" Mossman of Eldora, Iowa, 50 to 40, and then lost to Harvey Emerson.

SOLONS MOVE FOR INCREASE IN SALARIES

Both Houses Pass Duncan Resolution to Submit Proposal to Voters

Madison—(AP)—The state legislature acted quickly Tuesday to submit its bid for increased salaries to the voters.

Both houses passed the Duncan joint resolution which will submit a proposed constitutional amendment to the people for the April election under which the legislature may set salaries of its members.

The resolution was adopted by the 1927 legislature and was pushed through the assembly Tuesday under suspension of the rules, just after the senate had approved it and speeded it to the lower house. This procedure generally takes more than a day.

Under the constitution all amendments must be approved by two consecutive legislatures, then by the voters.

Debate on the proposal was brief in the lower house, and centered chiefly around the time element. The electorate has once defeated a similar proposal.

The resolution of E. G. Smith, condemning the manner in which the 1929 road school was conducted and asking the highway commission to see that future ones are so conducted that they will be no disgrace to the state, was passed by the assembly and immediately sent to the senate.

The resolution said outside interests were at fault for the allegedly had conditions in the road school, and exonerated state highway officials.

BANKING QUESTION
Following the state banking department's investigation into the operation of the small loans law, Senator W. S. Goodland, Racine, introduced a resolution in the upper house asking C. F. Schwenker, banking commissioner to provide information on effect of the measure to date and to give his impressions regarding needed changes in it.

Coincident with introduction of this resolution C. L. Lacy of Mercer presented a bill in the assembly amending the small loan act to lower the legal interest rate from 3 to 1 1/2 per cent per month.

His bill would also raise the license fee taken from small loans establishments by the state from $50 to $200. It would prevent these institutions from taking any assignment or order for payment of wages or compensation for services whether earned or to be earned and would stop the loan companies from making chattel loans on household furniture.

The Thayer resolution for a joint committee to meet with a similar group from Michigan and Minnesota to arrange uniform fish and game laws in these three states, was adopted by the assembly.

BEGIN TO PROBE COSTS OF ROCK-CO BUILDING

Janesville—(AP)—The Rock-co board met here at 10:30 Tuesday morning to begin to investigate itself.

With William Eldred, Beloit, presiding over the special committee of five board members, a probe was launched into the construction and expenditures connected with the almost completed tuberculosis sanitarium on the Rock-co farm.

The structure, which is a 75 bed affair, was to have cost approximately $200,000, but according to present indications the final figure will be at least $300,000 higher.

In an attempt to clear up the matter, nine witnesses, including the county treasurer, the chairman of the building committee, the county clerk and contractor, have been called to appear Tuesday.

George Geffs, former district attorney, who has been retained after the expiration of his term of office because of his familiarity with the situation, and taxpayers' attorneys, will aid in the probe.

HOUSE, SENATE GROUPS DON'T AGREE ON FUND

Washington—(AP)—The house and senate conferees on the deficiency appropriation bill failed to agree Tuesday on the senate amendment to provide $24,000,000 for dry law enforcement.

The $24,000,000 item was placed in the bill against the wishes of Secretary Mellon, who argued that a plan for expending it should first be formulated. A move to have the house vote directly upon it failed several days ago.

After Tuesday's conference the senate conferees prepared to return the item to the senate for reconsideration.

Standard Oil Of Indiana Cuts Its Biggest Melon

New York—(AP)—The New York curb market was thrown into such a tumult by a rush to buy the common stock of the Standard Oil company of Indiana Tuesday that the first transaction was not straightened out until after 1 o'clock when the sale of 70,000 shares at $100.25, a share, an overnight gain of $4.25, was finally arranged. The feverish demand for the issue resulted from the declaration Monday of 50 per cent stock and an extra cash dividend.

Nab Slayer Who Escaped From Prison

Was Convicted of Shooting Bill Brennan in 1924 in His Cafe

Elizabeth, N. J.—(AP)—The slayer of Bill Brennan, heavyweight pugilist, was in jail Tuesday after being a fugitive from Sing Sing prison for two years.

Joseph Piolo, who disappeared mysteriously from prison on the night of March 2, 1927, was arrested here Monday night as a suspicious character. Detectives nabbed him after watching his movements for more than a week. Their suspicions had been aroused by his apparent prosperity with no visible means of support.

When approached in a cafe he said he was James LaVelle of Newark. Detectives said they found a pistol in his pocket. An automobile he had been driving was registered in Union county under a fictitious name. Police said his identity as the escaped convict was established through police records.

The prisoner gave a detailed account of the manner in which he escaped from Sing Sing. He said that under cover of a heavy fog he slipped out of his cell carrying his mattress with him. Making his way to the top of the wall with the mattress, he said he held it before him and leaped into the Hudson river.

SWAM TO SAFETY
Swimming a distance of about three city blocks, he said, he climbed ashore and was away before the siren on the prison sounded warning that a prisoner had escaped.

Piolo and four others were indicted for shooting Brennan in his New York cabaret in July, 1924. Piolo pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree in October of the same year and was sentenced to 30 years.

Bill Brennan, Chicago, pugilist, who was at one time a contender for the heavyweight championship, retired from the ring in 1923 after being knocked out by Luis Firpo. Jack Dempsey knocked him out twice, once in six rounds in 1918 and in 12 rounds in 1920.

After quitting the fight game Brennan became proprietor of a cabaret. On the night of July 15, 1924, Brennan was in his establishment when five men entered and opened fire on him.

As Brennan fell James Cullen, a state trooper went to his assistance and was shot, dying later from the wound.

Chicago—(AP)—Milk will continue to sell for 14 cents a quart retail in Chicago, Dr. Arnold H. Regel, health commissioner, announced Tuesday after a conference with dealers who must pay an additional price resulting from a strike of Illinois and Wisconsin dairy farmers. Dr. Regel gave credit to the dealers for "suffering four different losses in recent years, four different losses in recent years in the form of a raise in the price of milk."

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—The awaited administration program relative to finances and the crime code revision started unfolding Tuesday. Governor Fred R. Green planned to submit to a joint meeting of the house and senate finance committee his plan for a form of state income tax. When it was to offer the substitute, which opposition to his plan developed. They include Speaker Fred R. Ming's amusement tax, a suggestion that highway funds be employed to improve institutions, a non-bar public companies from obtaining permits to operate radio stations.

Washington—(AP)—The ownership of radio stations by public utility companies and the influence they might exert in political campaigns was inquired into Tuesday by the senate interstate commerce committee, during discussion of the proposal to extend the life of the Federal Radio commission for another year. The question was raised by Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, who has introduced an amendment to the federal radio act which would assign to issue non-taxpayers with cash dividend, from a monetary standpoint, in the company's melon-cutting history.

A 50 per cent stock dividend, an extra cash dividend of 50 cents a share and the regular dividend of 62 1/2 cents a share were declared at a brief meeting Monday of the board of directors, of which Colonel Stewart is chairman. Estimated cash value of the stock dividend ranged from $300,000,000 to $100,000,000. Par value of the Standard Oil of Indiana stock is $25, but shares closed at $96 on the market Monday, which would make the value of the stock dividend $444,000,000.

The melon was placed before the stockholders without comment. The only official statement was issued by L. L. Stephens, general counsel, who said the dividend declaration was not for the purpose of changing votes in Colonel Stewart's fight to win reelection as board member and chairman at the March 7 meeting of stockholders. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who opposes continuance of the Stewart regime in the company's affairs, is seeking through his own stock holdings and the proxies of other stockholders to effect Colonel Stewart's defeat. The board chairman has been equally active in petitioning stockholders' support.

There are now on the company's books 9,250,000 shares of stock, and the actual value of the company has been placed by Colonel Stewart at $900,000,000. Stock sold up to $103 a share recently.

The new stock cannot be voted at the March 7 meeting, inasmuch as the books for that meeting closed Tuesday, 11 days before the stock dividend becomes payable.

BUCKLEY FACING IMPEACHMENT ACT

Ohio Treasurer Refuses to Resign and Governor Starts Proceedings

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—Impeachment proceedings have been started in the Ohio legislature against Bert B. Buckley, state treasurer, who was convicted in federal court Saturday of attempted bribery and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Governor Myers V. Cooper initiated the legislative action Monday night after Buckley had refused to appear before Municipal Judge J. W. Parkinson here Tuesday. The grand jury indicted him on charges of bribery and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. They were unable to get a warrant for his arrest because he was in the house of a friend. A quantity of coats and other articles were stolen from the store Sunday morning.

The house unanimously adopted a resolution calling for committee investigation of Buckley's conviction. Charges must be voted in the house after which a trial is conducted with the state senate sitting as a court.

Buckley, who is the first state official to face impeachment in Ohio, is free on $10,000 bond, pending arraignment Monday on his arrest from the federal court conviction. He faces a maximum sentence of 25 years and a fine of $10,000.

Testimony at the trial was that Buckley had offered $200 monthly to John P. Eckhart, acting assistant prohibition administrator, for information of federal activity against Cincinnati breweries.

SENATE PUTS INSERT INTO CRUISER BILL

Coolidge May Sign Measure Despite Inclusion of Time Clause

Washington—(AP)—The senate wrote into the cruiser bill Tuesday a statement that it favors a treaty with the principal naval powers to regulate the conduct of belligerents and neutrals at sea.

The proposal framed by Senators Borah, Republican, of Idaho, and Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, declared that an attempt should be made to negotiate the treaty before the convening of the arms conference in 1931.

Replying to inferences that President Coolidge had little hope for success of such treaties, Senator Borah said that "any man in charge of the affairs of this nation will utterly fail in fulfilling his duties" if he does not strive for such an end.

"I have very little confidence in treaties working when war breaks out," declared the Idahoan, who sponsored the amendment. "I would rather be right than president," he declared.

The vote on the Borah-Reed amendment was 51 to 1. Only Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, opposed it. He said it would just give England another opportunity to reject overtures from this nation.

As the vote was announced the chamber echoed with laughter. Senator Bruce leaped to his feet. "I would rather be right than president," he declared. "The senator will never be either," retorted Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, from the rear wall.

REFUSE DECREASE
The senate refused to decrease the number of new cruisers from 15 to 9, as proposed in an amendment by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska.

County Highway Board Says Roads Will Be Opened

ONLY $9,000 LEFT IN FUND TO MOVE SNOW

Farrell Says Commission Must Buy Equipment Adequate for Work

If taxpayers of Outagamie-co want snow removed at any cost they are going to get it.

That was the sentiment expressed by a majority of members of the county highway committee at a special meeting Monday afternoon at the courthouse.

Criticism and complaints have put the commissioners in a mood to go to extremes to move snow.

"We cannot place any blame on A. G. Brusewitz, the highway commissioner, or the men who have been working under him," declared James Farrell, supervisor from the town of Kaukauna. "It simply resolves itself into this: We haven't the equipment to do the work. I say let's get equipment and move snow if that's what the taxpayers want. If they feel that it will cost too much then let's stop trying to move it."

LET'S MOVE SNOW
The argument we have on hand at present is not adequate. We might as well face the situation. If more machinery is needed let's get it. If more plows are needed let's get them. But let's move the snow and stop the criticism. I have scarcely a minute's rest in a day. My telephone is ringing continually and I spend all day listening to complaints. Let's find out what we lack and then get it."

Mr. Farrell exploded when Mr. Brusewitz suggested that the committee purchase a Wausau snow plow to fit on one of the tractors and Supervisor Arnold Krueger of Maple Creek demurred on the grounds that the county had enough plows.

Mr. Brusewitz told the committee that he already had four plows for the four tractors but that one plow was "homemade." He said he had been told at the road school that the Wausau plow would do the work and he believed the committee ought to buy one and try it out.

Recently the committee bought two Wisconsin Special tractor plows, made almost exactly like the Wausau plow, at a cost of $1,950 each. These plows cost the same as the Wausau plows but weigh almost 3,000 pounds more than the Wausau.

ENOUGH EQUIPMENT
"So far as I am concerned I believe we have all the equipment necessary," objected Mr. Krueger. "When the $25,000 fund provided by the county board for snow removal is exhausted then so far as I am concerned snow removal work in the county is ended. Legally we cannot spend a cent more than we have been given and I, for one, will not vote to buy equipment if it means our removal fund will be exhausted."

Chairman Frank Appleton hastened to explain that while Mr. Krueger was right he felt that the people were demanding that the snow be removed and that the county board would back them up in an emergency of this kind.

"Let's either get the right equipment to remove snow in a proper manner or else let's stop spending the taxpayers' money in a manner that is not bringing results," Mr. Farrell told the board members. He said that most of the criticism and complaint is coming from farmers who are paying a snow removal tax and not receiving any benefit.

A checkup of the snow removal fund revealed that when all bills for January are paid there will remain but $9,087.61 and in the event of another severe storm it is very likely that the fund will be exhausted without the purchase of more snow plows.

The two new Four Wheel Drive trucks were purchased with the machinery fund and the trucks and chains are rented to the snow removal crews and the rental is taken from the snow removal fund and placed in the regular highway fund. Snow plows are paid for from the snow removal fund.

On Jan. 1, 1929, there was a balance of $23,494.97 in the snow removal fund. Expenditures for the month totaled $7,989.83, outstanding bills approved by the committee Monday totaled $13,564.33 while the cost of the four snow plows, which have not yet been paid for, is $5,950, a total of $14,407.35. The expenditures also include the purchase of two carloads of snow fence laying at the county garage.

A petition, signed by 116 Seymour business men, including the two supervisors, asking that better snow removal service be given the northern section of the county was read to the committee. It asked that a snow plow be stationed in Seymour so that it could get the roads opened a day or two after a storm instead of two weeks after. They pointed out that considerable business from Shawano was being lost because the customers could not get through to Seymour.

"So far as I'm concerned, when the snow removal fund is exhausted the snow removal work for the county is finished."

The discussion of the board then was turned to other counties and Mr. Brusewitz said that despite all reports to the contrary he was certain that conditions in other counties were not any better than they are in Outagamie. He asked the committee to come out with him and see for themselves. He pointed out that it would also be a good opportunity to see what other counties are doing and what equipment they have.

The discussion led the committee to decide that it would make the trip and that they were to inspect roads in Outagamie, Shawano and Brown-co.

AMERICA NOTED FOR SUPPORT OF ART

Heifetz Says United States Is "Nation of Listeners"

America is the greatest nation of listeners in the world, in the opinion of Jascha Heifetz, who is coming here next Monday under the auspices of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, and because he has given concerts in practically every country in the world, he is well qualified to speak on the subject.

"A great artist can always count on large audiences here," he said. "No other country gives a better support to music. But it is far from being the greatest in the matter of creating music. It imports fine musicians, conductors, composers—but it spends little effort in developing its own. I think the reason for this is that music has such a small place in American home life. In Europe nearly every family supplies its own music. How many American families can do that?"

"The trouble is that music is so easy to get artificially here—mechanical instruments are so common. Then too there is too much prosperity for the development of the best in art. Everything is too easy. People need hardship—not necessarily poverty—but rather a rough road, if art is to have the stimulus it needs. There is great promise in the increased attention that schools are paying to music, but I think it will be a matter of centuries before America is truly a musical nation."

MILWAUKEE SENDS YOUTH OF 23 TO HELP MAKE LAWS

Madison — (UP) — Assemblyman Harry G. Slater of Milwaukee makes no claim to being a "boy legislator," but he does admit he is close to the line, for at 23 he takes his place in the lower house as representative of the Milwaukee twelfth.

Born in Milwaukee, the youthful assemblyman was educated in the Milwaukee public schools. While at Marquette, Slater was a member of the intercollegiate debating team, was named to Theta Rho, honorary debating fraternity, and is a member of Alpha Epsilon Pi, social, and Kappa Mu Rho, legal fraternities.

When not at Madison as part of the legislature, Slater practices law in his native city.

HUGE REAL ESTATE DEVELOPMENT NEW ROCKEFELLER PLAN

Millionaire Plans City With-in City in Central Part of New York

BY G. D. SEYMOUR

New York — (UP) — In the central part of New York city, hard by the streets where millions shop and play, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has acquired an 11-acre tract upon which he contemplates the biggest building project ever known to a modern metropolis.

He has leased for 37 years three rectangular blocks in the midtown business district as the site of a city within a city. In it a new Metropolitan Opera House is to be the principal edifice, flanked by shops and plazas which will make the scene an elaborated counterpart of the Place de l'Opera in Paris.

For the first 24 years, Rockefeller will pay to Columbia University, which owns the property, $30,000,000 in rent, or about $3,750,000 a year. Thus does the university dispose, for several generations to come, of a plot of land which was a white elephant when it obtained it as a grant from the state in 1814. It was four miles from the heart of the city and so difficult to lease even for a few hundred dollars a year that the university believed it had been blighted, and wished it might have gotten a few thousand dollars in cash instead.

The plan for the development of "Rockefeller City" is to raise the four and five story structures now occupying it—mostly brownstone flats with stores and eating places on the first two floors and apartments above—and to build an architectural entity of shops on three sides of a plaza which will be fronted by the new Metropolitan Opera house.

Plans as yet are tentative, and must be worked out between officials of the Metropolitan Opera company, Rockefeller himself, and prospective sub-renters of the business buildings which will flank from the opera house.

But it is probable that the new opera, with seats for 3,700 persons, will have its back in Sixth avenue, and that its courtyard will be a park square in the middle of the block now bounded by Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets.

Whatever its evolution, all of it will be built as a unit, with uniformity in setbacks, building materials and architectural style, and with gradations of height which will enable the new opera house to rise above its surroundings like the dominant castle of a city in the clouds.

The Metropolitan has been housed since the early eighties at Thirtieth street and Broadway, a dozen blocks farther downtown. Its directors have been talking for years of a new site and a finer building. Before the Rockefeller site can be accepted, there must be consideration of finances, easements to transportation lines, and other factors. But nobody deems it possible that the Metropolitan will erect this opportunity for a new home, and Rockefeller himself apparently had assurance of cooperation before he went ahead with the leasing of property in development of which he must make an ultimate expenditure of $250,000,000 or more.

The present site of the Metropolitan will sell for $13,000,000, directors estimate. The block it occupies is the most valuable piece of property on the city's tax lists.

The deal just consummated by Mr. Rockefeller has been gathering impetus for two years. Realtors and architects dreamed of such a thing, but it was of such magnitude that it was only a dream until Mr. Rockefeller was interested in it.

The leasing of such a great parcel of land in a district so highly developed was possible only because all of it was under the single ownership of Columbia university, which is forbidden, by the terms of its deed, ever to sell the property.

OFFER REWARD FOR CHICKEN THIEVES

90 Chickens Are Stolen from Ray Menning Farm in Town of Greenville

A reward of $25 is offered by Ray Menning, town of Greenville, for information leading to the arrest of the thieves who stole about 90 chickens from his farm last Friday night, it was reported Tuesday at the office of Fred W. Glese. Theft of the chickens was reported Saturday to the sheriff's department.

The majority of the chickens were White Rocks. There were a few four or five birds were left in the coop the following morning when the Menning family discovered the theft.

The thieves evidently left their automobile parked on a side road and approached the chicken house through the fields, according to Mr. Menning. Nobody in this household heard any noise in the yard, but the owner said this might be explained by the fact that the chicken house is located in the rear of the barn.

The sheriff has only one or two slim clues on which to work. A number of chickens, killed and dressed, were sold from house to house in Green Bay Sunday, and it is believed that a few also were disposed of in like manner in this city.

$2,000 A YEAR MANEconomy and Lasting Beauty Included in His "Ideal Neighborhood"

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NIA Service Writer
Philadelphia—If we are to remain a nation of individual homes rather than apartments, we must find new ways of reducing the financial burden of the single family owner, according to Robert Whitten, New York City planner.

The house owner must, in other words, buy his neighborhood as well as his house, and must select it with a view to permanency and future possibilities.

The planning expert was in Philadelphia to address the tenth National Housing Conference. Before this body he was to outline his pet project, a model neighborhood within the means of families which have an income of $1800 to $2500 a year. This could be operated, Whitten declares, on the equivalent of $50 a month rental for a five-room house.

SHOULD BE COMPLETE UNIT
"The ideal neighborhood must have all the functions and facilities of a complete residence unit," he said. "It must have churches, schools, shops, assembly halls, clubs and mail parks or commons."

"It must have a well-ordered arrangement of these various functions and facilities and a local system of circulation that will not interfere with or be incommoded by the general circulation system of the city or the region as a whole."

The local streets, small parks, building lots and buildings should conform in the main to the topography and should be fitted to the contour of the land. Their location and arrangement should seem to be necessary and natural.

The residence neighborhood must possess the natural beauty that comes from private gardens, street trees and small parks, and from the careful preservation in its planning of the scientific beauty and the exceptional physical features of the site."

BEARS CIVIC BURDEN
Much of the present financial burden imposed on the owner of a single family home is the unwise method of controlling the subdivision of land into building lots, the character of street improvements required by city standards and the increase in land values with the attendant higher carrying charges and higher taxes, he pointed out.

"An important factor in the scheme of the model neighborhood is its permanency," the city planner declared. "It assumes a stabilized condition brought about by zoning regulations. This does away with buying for speculation or exploiting later for business purposes."

It assumes that each 40 foot lot will permanently be a single family detached house and each 60 foot lot will permanently house a double house location and that no more intensive type of housing will ever be permitted.

"It is estimated for a 160 acre tract, and a population of between five and six thousand, such as could be adequately served by one elementary school."

BUILD AROUND SCHOOL
"Whitten's ideal neighborhood locates store centers on or near the bounding streets and centers the community about a centrally located school, auditorium, playground and commons, and provides adequate small park and playground areas."

"The layout of the local streets," he explained, "is such as to furnish no route clear across the subdivision and will confine traffic to the boundary streets."

This, with the provision of adequate and well distributed off-the-street play, will greatly reduce traffic accidents as well as secure the peace and quiet appropriate to a residence neighborhood.

"On a short street with no through traffic, serving only as access to the single family houses fronting on it."

Chocolate and cocoa stains may be removed by borax and cold water, or by bleaching if necessary.

The 30 or 40 foot width pavement required by certain city standards is wasteful, an 18 or 24 foot width is better and less costly.

STANDARDIZED PAVEMENTS
"City standards as to pavement width are predicted on the possible requirements of the future when the use of the property fronting on the street may be changed to an apartment house or for business use."

"Economies in street and pavement cost cannot be reasonably demanded by the home owner unless the character of the neighborhood is permanently established as a single family unit. This can best be secured by restrictions established in the deed by the developer at the time, the land is subdivided and sold."

Whitten's plan has aroused much interest in building circles, but has yet not been tried out in its entirety. Remarkable neighborhoods have been worked out in more expensive allotments, he pointed out, notably the Radburn development in New Jersey, the Kansas City Country Club district, Roland Park in Baltimore, Mariemont in Cincinnati and the Shaker Heights section of Cleveland.

TEACH SANITATION IN TRADE SCHOOL PLUMBING CLASSES

Approve Courses for Apprentices at Milwaukee Conference

Rapid steps are being made by state representatives of the Wisconsin Board of vocational education and itinerant plumbing instructors of state vocational schools in advancing a thorough course in plumbing and domestic sanitary engineering for apprentices, according to M. M. Hanson, itinerant instructor in plumbing at the local school.

The proposed course was outlined by state representatives and itinerant teachers at a recent meeting of master plumbers, journeymen and others interested in the plumbing industry, held in Milwaukee. The purpose of the proposed courses is to teach apprentices modern sanitation, perfect methods of water supply and sewage disposal, according to Mr. Hanson.

The outline met with the approval of the conference and it was decided to promote classes in state vocational schools in an effort to educate apprentices so that in the near future the public will be directly affected and plumbers will know all rules and regulations as prescribed by the state board of health and industrial commissions, according to Mr. Hanson.

The state board of health rules that three year's experience as an apprentice should constitute a reasonable time in the business; or the candidate for licensed plumber must be a candidate of a recognized trade school in Wisconsin which gives at least a two year's course.

Mr. Hanson is in charge of courses to be held in Appleton, Fond du Lac, Green Bay and Oshkosh. Other men and cities to be supervised by them are F. O. Maeder, Manitowoc; Racine, Sheboygan and Two Rivers; A. J. Matthais, Jr., Cudahy, South Milwaukee, Waukesha and West Allis, and Henry Pommerenck, Beloit, Janesville, Madison and Watertown.

The basic formal instruction for apprentices will include 450 hours of work, 200 hours to be devoted to studying the state plumbing code, including mathematics, written work, drawing and science. Fifty hours will be devoted to the study of domestic water and 100 hours to manipulative processes. Fifty hours will be spent in studying jointing and connections of iron pipe, brass, copper and tile piping, according to Mr. Hanson.

LAND DISPUTES STILL UNSETTLED

Much Detailed Remains on 45 "Open" Grants, Department Reports

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Washington, D. C. — While a staff of experts have been working for decades to straighten out a dispute with railroads of the west who received land grants from the government two generations ago, there still remains 45 "open" grants comprising some 26,000,000 acres of land — an area as big as the state of Kentucky — on which there is an infinite amount of detailed work before they can be relegated to the dead files along with the 27 grants that have been finally "closed," the Department of Interior announced Monday.

The first of these old grants to be made by the government was one in 1823 to aid in the construction of a wagon road from the lower rapids of the Miami of Lake Erie to the western boundary of the Connecticut Western Reserve in Ohio.

The second purpose for which a land grant was made, in 1827, was the construction of a canal in Indiana to connect the Wabash River and Lake Erie.

In 1828 a grant was made to the State of Alaska to aid in the improvement of the Tennessee, Coosa, Cahawba and Black Warrior rivers.

Recognizing the importance of the railroad, Congress on September 20, 1850, granted to the States of Illinois, Mississippi, and Alabama lands to aid in the construction of a railroad from Peru, LaSalle County, Illinois, to Mobile, Alabama.

There were 13 grants to aid in the construction of wagon roads, the first to Ohio, in 1823 and the last in 1869, the grants being to the States of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Oregon. The area certified to the said States under these grants amounts in the aggregate to 3,296,618 acres. All of those grants but one have been adjusted and closed.

There are 10 grants to the States of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan for the construction of canals, made between 1827 and 1869, the aggregate area of all the land thus granted being 4507,663 acres.

All such grants are adjusted and closed.

In connection with river improvements, three grants were made to Alabama, Wisconsin, Iowa, aggregating 2,245,322 acres. The first grant to Alabama was made in 1828 and the last to Iowa, in 1846. Of these grants two are satisfied, the other, that to Alabama, will be closed shortly.

During the period from the time of the first grant of September 20, 1850, to that of the last, March 3, 1871, to Louisiana, there were 89 railroad grants made. Of the 89 grants 17 were forfeited by Congress for failure on the part of those receiving them to construct the contemplated roads. No statistics of the area of the land invited in such forfeited grants have ever been compiled or attempted.

"WHEN I climbed aboard the 'America' after those cold, strenuous hours getting the men off the freighter 'Florida,' there was nothing I wanted so much as a Lucky—'By George,' it tasted wonderful! A Lucky is always refreshing. My tense nerves relaxed, my aching throat was soothed and the whole thrilling adventure just seemed a part of the day's work. As time goes by, and as I look back to that memorable night, I'll always remember the wonderful taste of that welcome Lucky. As I went around to visit the men we'd rescued, I found many of them enjoying Luckies, too. We really couldn't wait to get back to our ship and 'Luckies.' As an actual fact in returning to the 'America' I noticed one of our men* rowing with one hand and lighting a 'Lucky' with the other. There's no flavor to equal toasted tobaccos, and I always prefer Lucky Strikes. There's wisdom in the saying: 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' SCIENTISTS MAY BE ABLE TO FORECAST INSECT ATTACKS

PLAN IS BASED ON TEMPERATURES AND KNOWLEDGE OF BUGS

Information Will Serve as Guide to Farmers in Selecting Crops

MES, Ia.—Forecasting the percentage of insects which will live through the winter and attack the next season's crops may become a reality if a system now being developed by Roy Melvin, research student at Iowa State College here, is perfected.

By means of this forecasting some farmers early in the spring will know whether to expect few or many insects of a certain kind. Truck gardeners will be able to plant a different crop or lay in a supply of insecticide.

The cotton grower will be forewarned of the approach of the boll weevil and can be prepared. The alfalfa grower will know whether many grasshoppers will attack his crop and can plan to use poison bran mash if necessary.

TEMPERATURE AFFECTS PESTS

Melvin's plan is based on the fact that temperature during the winter determines what per cent of insects will live through the season. After the effects of various temperatures on various insects, either in egg, pupal, larval or adult stage is determined, the entomologist by a study of previous winter temperatures and resultant insect scourges, will be able to make his forecast.

During a warm spell in winter the life process of the bug or egg may become enlivened. If this goes too far a following cold spell may kill the insect. If that does not happen the egg may be so exhausted by its premature activity that it will not hatch in the spring because available food has been used up.

Melvin is working with eggs of various insects to determine the effect to various temperatures on them. In any life process—metabolism, as the scientist terms it—oxygen is used. The amount of oxygen used is an accurate index to the amount and extent of the life process or metabolism.

COMPLICATED APPARATUS USED

The apparatus used in determining the effect of temperature on the insect egg consists of two glass jars connected by a long slender "U" shaped tube. In the tube is column of oil. An egg is placed in one compartment, the compartment sealed, and both are placed in a water bath in which the temperature is accurately controlled by electricity.

The temperature is held at a point corresponding to a warm spell in winter. The egg starts its life process. This uses oxygen, creates a vacuum and tends to pull the air from the other compartment moving the oil column. The tube which holds the oil is marked and the amount of oxygen used can be computed.

After enough of these tests have been made the entomologist will know, from a study of the past winter's temperature, whether the farmer may expect many or few insects of a certain kind the next season.

MACHINERY SAVING GROWERS MAN LABOR

Largest Item of Expense in Sugar-beet Production Solved by Inventions

Man labor is by far the largest item of expense in sugar beet production—an item of expense that is being reduced in many districts by use of larger equipment that enables more work to be done per man in a given time.

Farm management specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture have made a study of labor requirements for various operations in the sugar-beet growing regions of Michigan, Ohio, Colorado, Montana, Utah, Idaho, and California. In Farmers' Bulletin No. 1042-F, "Saving Man Labor in Sugar-Beet Fields," just issued by the department, they tell how man labor can be saved and production speeded up through the use of large machines and large units of power.

In many districts plowing is done with a unit consisting of a single-bottom plow, one man and two horses; if the work were done with a two-bottom four-horse plow and one man, twice as much ground could be covered by one man in the same time. The same comparison is true of a number of other operations in sugar-beet production, such as cultivating, harrowing, lifting, and hauling. Large units and more power than commonly employed could be used in many instances with the result that more work could be done by one man.

The bulletin is well illustrated to show comparisons of the different sized units of power and the respective saving of man labor for the larger units. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the United States department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CALF CLUBS TRAINING MANY FUTURE BREEDERS

Madison—That boys' calf clubs are training many of the leading dairy cattle breeders of the future is the belief of B. H. Hibbard, agricultural economist at the University of Wisconsin, who was recently elected president of the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association. Hibbard sees in these organizations a means of training and training efficient dairy cattle breeders.

"A large number of boys have made a real start toward a purebred herd of value and importance by buying a calf," he says.

"By the time they are out of the calf club work they may be ready to make a start on a herd of purebred cattle, and some have been kept on their father's farm."

FARMER CLAIMS PROFIT FROM HOG OF 2200 PER CENT

Groton, S. D.—(P)—Randall Hall, a farmer, says he has made a 2,200 per cent profit on one sow. After he bought the animal it farrowed 12 pigs. Eleven matured, and Hall sold nine of them as well as the sow. From the proceeds he purchased 65 feeder pigs. He expects to make a third as much on each of the feeders as on the original sow.

OFFERS FIGURES TO PROVE WORTH OF VALUABLE SIRE

Care in This Matter Will Result in More Dollars, Says Farm Expert

BY W. F. WINSEY
In a discussion of herd improvement before the dairy cowmen Tuesday, as a part of the program of Farm Folks' week at College of Agriculture, Madison, Charles Halloway, Racine-co, presented figures to show the increase in value of dairy cattle in dollars and cents and also of milk production, brought about by the use of herd sires with a production record behind them, and the services of cow testing associations.

"Most of the cows in our Jersey herd in 1920 were sired by a son of King Sappo King, a bull which was quite popular at one time," said Halloway. "Our herd of 35 cows averaged for 1920, 365 pounds of butterfat. The herd included nine registered production cows with an average of 418 pounds of fat. The high cow had 513 pounds of fat to her credit."

"The daughters of these cows by the sire then used did not show up well at the fair. Their milk tested high enough, but they did not give enough milk. Only a few of them made over 300 pounds of fat as two year olds."

"The thing we did then was to get a sire that we thought would sire daughters as good as their dams or better. We bought University Pegasus, a ten months old calf, from the University of Wisconsin."

"This calf was chosen because he was backed up by heavy production for a long way back on both his sire's and dam's side of his pedigree. His sire was a good individual. His dam had a good barrel and udder and put out a record of 15,849 pounds of milk containing 746 pounds of butterfat."

"Our cow testing association was kept going year after year and by the time this bull's daughters came into milk, we were ready to test them out. Some of them made better than forty pounds of fat per month as two year olds, and occasionally one would run over 50 pounds per month. This was the first time we ever had two year old heifers making over 40 pounds of fat per month."

WATCH FEEDING RESULTS

"These heifers were good feeders, many of them getting away with from 12 to 15 pounds of grain per day. This may seem like a lot of grain for two year old heifers but I like to crowd them a little soon after they freshen to see what they are really made of. If they do not respond to feed, they are just like the ones that need watching."

"The grain mixture fed is of no small importance. In the first place we find that the mixture must be palatable or the cattle will not eat it and feed and not eat enough to do them much good. A good palatable mixture can be made from corn, oats, bran, oil meal and gluten feed. Sometimes we substitute barley for corn, and soybean meal or cotton seed meal for gluten or oil meal."

"The ration fed most of the time is 100 pounds corn, 100 pounds oats, 100 pounds bran, 50 pounds oil meal, and 50 pounds gluten feed. We increase the protein by adding more gluten and oil meal, sometimes as much as doubling the amount when timothy hay is fed instead of alfalfa or other good legume hay."

"All of our dry cows are fed grain and fitted to some extent before freshening. We start to feed grain about a month before freshening and sometimes six weeks before if the cows are thin, feeding from 5 to 10 pounds per day according to the condition and abundance of the cow. Grain is fed when cows are on pasture as well as when they are in dry feed."

"Now after all is said and done, what is the proven sire worth? We paid $400 for University Pegasus Calf."

ADVISES PROPER CHICKEN HOUSE TO MAKE POULTRY PAY

Presents Plans for Model Building Suggested by College of Agriculture

BY W. F. WINSEY

The farm flock of chickens is either an asset or a liability, according to H. R. Lathrop, agricultural agent of Kewaunee-county. If the flocks lay during the winter months, when consumers want fresh eggs and prices are high they are a big paying investment, but if they lay for only a month or so in the spring when a surplus of eggs is being stored and prices are low, the flocks are nothing more than a big bill of expense, he pointed out.

To feed a flock of 120 chickens through the winter from October to March, both months inclusive, at 15 cents per bird per month requires the owner to provide $108 worth of feed. If he gets no egg production during those months, his investment and work with the flock for all practical purposes may be considered a total loss. On the other hand if by changing his housing and the care of his chickens he succeeds in getting a 50 per cent or a 60 per cent production during those months, his profits will be greater than that coming from the average herd of ten cows during the winter.

The range from loss to gain in the farm flock of chickens is a reasonably inexpensive and attractive one to make. This change involves (1) the selection of chicks from egg-laying strains of hens ready for the brooders in April, (2) the placing of the brooders on clean ground at some distance from the range of old birds, (3) Confining the pullets in the laying house in the later part of September or the first part of October, and (4) The removal of loafers in the flock.

But really the most important improvement in the management of the flock is a healthful, sanitary, dry housing of the flock. Expert poultry men and those making the farm flock pay satisfactory profits, say that hens endure cold without any let up in egg production but they must have dry, well ventilated and lighted quarters.

KEEP INVESTMENT DOWN

In providing suitable quarters for the farm flock, the owner must be careful not to make his investment so great that it precludes the possibility of profit. An investment of $500 in a showy hen house means an overhead of at least $30 interest yearly, while an investment of half that amount cuts that overhead in two.

The type of chicken house used by several farm women in Kewaunee-co, who made over $150 a month from their flocks last winter, is the one designed by the engineers of the college of agriculture. Impelled by the financial success of these pioneer women in the practice of making the farm flock pay, 22 more farm women of Kewaunee-co have built and are now using the state type of chicken house for the first time this winter under the supervision of County Agent Lathrop.

The state type of chicken house is of the straw loft type, 20 by 20 feet, eight feet high, and provides room for a flock of 120 chickens. The building faces the south and is lighted by three large windows in the south that may be opened. The ceiling of the building is made of strips placed on the overlays with spaces of several inches between them, or of wire of large mesh. The feet of straw that absorb the moisture and serves as a part of the perfect ventilation system of the building. An adequate supply of fresh air is admitted to the building through two, large baffle windows between the other windows, constructed of strips of boards placed break-joint fashion to exclude direct drafts.

CEILING SLOPES 3 FEET

The ceiling of the building supporting the straw slopes from a height of eight feet in the south to five feet in the north. The roosts are placed close to ceiling and straw in the north side of the building for the reason that this is the warmest part of the building. Underneath the roosts and about six inches above the dropping boards or platform is a secondary floor made of meshed wire. The purpose of the wire floor is to keep the birds from coming in contact with the droppings and to keep the eggs clean.

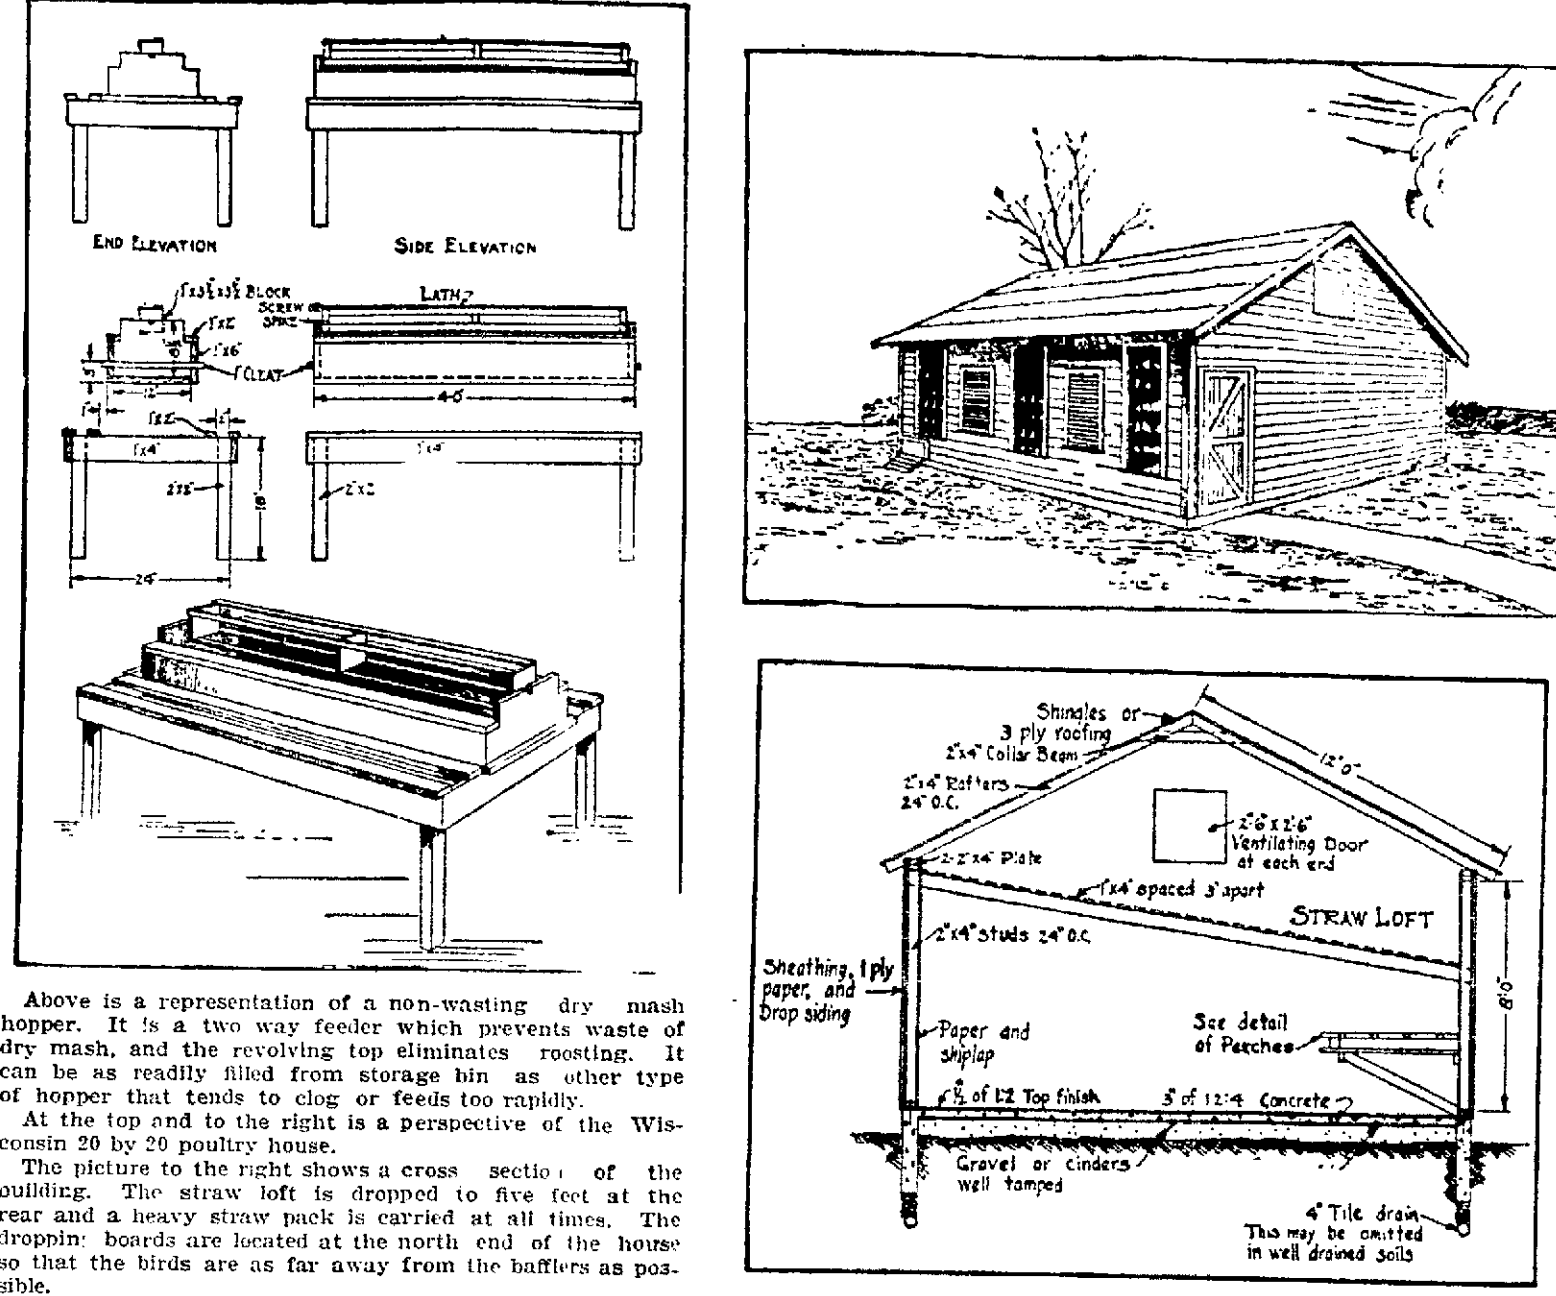

The concrete floor of the building has perfect under drainage, slopes six inches to the south and is as dry as the floor is available at all times for scratching and providing from three and one-half to four square feet of surface for each bird. The mash feeding troughs are made of wood, provided with a rolling top and set on legs 16 inches high in order to take up no floor space.

The windows of the building may be opened to give the hens direct sunlight. If the owner of such a building is so well pleased with its profits that he wishes to double the size of his flock he may do so after adding the size of his hen-house in the form of an addition.

This house may be built at a cost of about $350, with the assurance that the flock housed in it, under proper care, will pay construction costs or more the first winter.

Circular 154, House the Hen Economically, written by J. G. Halpin, J. B. Hayes and J. S. Swenbert, and issued by the college of agriculture, may be had by application to the college, county agents, or the writer. This circular presents pictures of the building in elevation, cross sections and working models. It also contains a bill of the material needed in the construction. The descriptions and working plans are so complete that the owner of a farm may put up the building by the writer and demonstrated by any one who desires to make a farm flock pay.

Here Are Plans For Model Chicken House

Above is a representation of a non-wasting dry mash hopper. It is a two way feeder which prevents waste of dry mash, and the revolving top eliminates roosting. It can be as readily filled from storage bin as other type of hopper that tends to clog or feeds too rapidly.

At the top and to the right is a perspective of the Wisconsin 20 by 20 poultry house.

The picture to the right shows a cross section of the building. The straw loft is dropped to five feet at the rear and a heavy straw pack is carried at all times. The droppings boards are located at the north end of the house so that the birds are as far away from the bafflers as possible.

Dairyman Finds Profit In Raising Own Heifers

Waushara—To avoid purchasing dairy heifers for herd replenishing a Waushara county certified milk producer has returned to the plan of raising his own.

Managers of certified milk farms in this area, due to the higher prices at which they sold their product, hesitated to raise their own replacements. But two years ago the practice of raising heifer calves to avoid some of the uncertainties incident to purchasing such stock was undertaken and they now have over 125 head ranging from a few days to two years in age.

During the first two months the calves get a limited amount of whole milk and not to exceed four pounds a day of a grain mixture recommended by G. C. Humphrey, of the Wisconsin Agricultural college.

This grain ration is made up of: brain, oil meal, ground oats, corn meal, blood meal, ground limestone, steamed bonemeal and salt. A small amount of skim milk is fed when available.

At five to six weeks of age, their grain ration is changed to equal parts: bran, ground oats, oil meal and corn meal. Legume and corn silage make up the roughage of the ration.

Every one of the heifers on this farm has proven negative to the agglutination test for contagious abortion and is rugged and thrifty.

The operators of the farm figures that under his condition six months old heifers may be listed at about $40. This figure is arrived at by valuing the calf at birth, $10; whole milk, $9.60; skim milk, $9; grain, $2.25; hay, $1.50; bedding, labor, insurance, taxes and depreciation on buildings and equipment are entered as $7.75.

He estimates that the second six months cost $26, making the cost at one year $66 a head. In this second period, hay is listed at $6.75; silage, $2.15; bedding, labor, etc., $6.75.

Expenses during the second year are entered as follows: hay, $15; grain, $10.50; silage, $8; pasture, $3; miscellaneous, $11.25; bringing the total cost at two years to $115.

This man, along with others in the county, is seeking ways to reduce the cost while producing equally good cows. He figures that heifers as good as the cows in his herd would cost about $185 and since these heifers have all been sired by bred for production sires they should at least be as good.

FARM MACHINERY GETS BOYS BACK

Modern Inventions Solve Problem of Keeping Youths on Homesteads

Raleigh, N. C.—The same old question that has been bothering farmers for many years, "How are you gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" has been settled without Congress ever having seen a bill providing for it.

In 1922, Ernest and O. P. Bellamy, of Brunswick county, left the farm of their father, James S. Bellamy, and went to work in the steel mills at Pittsburgh. The city beckoned, so they decided farm life was a drudgery and didn't provide the profit that a job in the mills would.

The father, physically incapable of much manual labor, invested in a few hand-pumped farm implements. He bought a three-horse riding plow, a number of harrows, planters, fertilizer distributors and other implements. He and his only other son, cultivated four times as much land that season as the four of them handled previously.

Machinery brought about better efficiency, better returns per acre and the farm prospered.

"The boys in the steel mills at Pittsburgh heard of the new developments," says A. T. Holman, agricultural agent at State College, "and returned to invest what money they had saved in farm lands adjoining the old place and began farming according to the new plan. As a result all are making more money than they ever did and the four farms are paying their owners."

Over 47 states, cattle were sent to Mexico, Canada, South America, Spain, the British Isles, Africa, Central America and Australia.

FARMERS MAY JOIN MILK PRODUCERS

Chicago Milk Strike Brings Possibility to Head in Outagamie-co

BY W. F. WINSEY

Since the strike of the milk producers, supplying milk to Chicago consumers, farmers are quite generally in Outagamie-co are discussing the possibility of uniting into a county unit and joining the Association of Pure Milk Producers which now has 7,000 members in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Although the method of joining the association is not clearly defined, the present plan of local farmers is to call meetings at central points in the county and to invite representatives of the association to address the meetings and to outline the plan and requirement of initiation.

As a representative of the association was one of the speakers at several of the dairyman's meetings held in Outagamie-co and a number of the local dairymen who heard him are already posted on what the purposes of the association are what it has accomplished, what remains to be done and what the requirements of membership are.

It is likely that when the time comes for organization, the farmers will get considerable assistance from the office of the county agent.

farmer in Laurens county." He has made a tidy fortune out of his farm which he actively superintends every day.

It is all considered very remarkable; Willys always has been totally blind.

NEW FASHIONS | A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN | BEAUTY HINTS

THE NEW Saint Sinner. By Anne Austin

It was nearly dark and the Plimptons were quarrelling rather bitterly over the question of supper, Mr. Plimpton having romantic notions about a roadside restaurant feast, to celebrate the annexation of Crystal, or "Little Miss Patricia" as he called her, to the party, and Mrs. Plimpton doggedly insisting upon their usual can-opener-and-trying-pan meal.

"Ain't a bit of sense blowing in three or four dollars on one of these 'Southern-fried chicken' dinners," Mrs. Plimpton repeated.

"Please don't bother about me an instant!" Crystal said.

"Well, suit yourself, Aggie," Mr. Plimpton gave in, as he drove the car into a country lane. "I'll get a chance to look over the morning paper I bought in Stanton. We was held up their all day while them garage bandits tinkered with the car," he explained to Crystal, "but I left the paper in the pocket of the car and haven't looked at it yet." He shook out its folds as his wife got out of the car and began to poke about in the high pile of bedding and camp equipment which filled the tonneau. "See that they are still looking for that Jefferson girl. They think she was kidnapped and the crooks are afraid to ask for ransom," he added sociably to Crystal.

"Cy Plimpton, if you think I'm going to slave over supper all by myself you've got another think coming," his wife called angrily.

Crystal, who had again sunk into the apathy of despair, roused herself then to offer her services, which were curtly refused by Mrs. Plimpton. The man had left the dash light on, and as husband and wife set about getting supper, the girl picked up the Stanton Morning Post and began to look over the front page in a piteous effort to keep from thinking.

"Jefferson Girl Believed Kidnaped," announced a big headline. Crystal frowned as she tried to remember the case. A Darrow girl—high school senior—missing for days; woods combed for her; lakes dragged. There was a picture of the girl, a wistful-eyed, sweet-faced young thing, not more than seventeen. The caption beneath the picture caught Crystal's still half-dazed mind. "Patricia Jefferson, who has not been seen since she walked out of the Darrow High school ten days ago. Police are working on the theory that the beautiful high school senior went to keep a tryst with a sweetheart of whom she had hinted, but whose existence her family indignantly denies."

"To keep a tryst," Crystal repeated. "Maybe Elsie had a sweetheart like Pablo, someone of whom she was a little ashamed, but whom she loved." To keep a tryst. I wonder what they say about—me? The thought, admitted idly, quickly took complete possession of poor Crystal's harassed mind. What would Bob and Faith and Tony think? By this time they would know that she had disappeared, taking a suitcase full of clothes with her. Would they jump to the conclusion that she had gone to "keep a tryst?"

IN SAME HOUSE, DIDN'T SPEAK FOR TEN YEARS

BY ALLENE SUMNER

Living for more than ten years in the same house without speaking and with all communications handed in writing from each one to the daughter and from her to the other one, is the strange marital achievement of Mr. and Mrs. William Evans of Hyde Park, Pa.

It seems that neither husband nor wife, however, whether they could so demean themselves as to speak to each other or not, permitted the other to overlook any marital obligations. He passed notes requesting that his socks be mended or that she have a special dish for supper, and she reminded him that the screens needed mending or the furnace stoked.

And what can one really say to anything like this—except marvel that such pertinacity could not be put to nobler ends!

Frozen fruits are simple, delicious desserts. The fruit is usually frozen without stirring since it is most attractive served whole. It should not be frozen too hard and may be garnished with very cold, but not frozen, whipped cream sweetened and flavored delicately. "Muscovite" is the technical term for a simple frozen fruit.
Following are two rules for lemon butter:

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE bear that came out from the trees just wobbled round and round with ease. It looked real clumsy with its body swinging to and fro. Each Trouble Tot and Tynymite kept very quiet, out of sight. Just what was going to happen next of course they did not know.
Soon Clowzy whispered, "Seems to me that he's as tame as he can be. Let's run right out and play with him. Perhaps he'll be real kind." Just then, however, Mister bear began to jump and roll and tear. And when he roared aloud it made poor Clowzy change his mind.
"Oh, no!" he whispered. "Don't run out. I really haven't any doubt that we would all be chewed right up. We're safer where we are. No doubt the bear will soon go away and if he does I hope he'll say whatever place he's heading for I hope it's good and far."
By this time Scouty got a hunch, which he explained to all the bunch. "I have a rope which we can throw across the ground," said he. Then Clowzy said, "All right, you stay right here and I'll skip across the way. When I'm beyond that big oak tree, you throw the rope to me."
When Mister Bear was turned around, poor Clowzy sneaked across the ground, and hid behind the monstrous tree across from Scouty's stand. Then Scouty shouted, "Here I go. Be ready, low cause I will throw the rope right through the air and you can catch it in your hand."
The rope then sailed across the ground and Clowzy caught it safe and sound. Just then the bear began to run. He headed toward the rope. In just a moment he fell flat and Scouty shouted, "Look at that! We've tripped him, and if we are quick we'll be him tight, I hope."
The bunch made a queer discovery in the next story.

RELIGION IS BASIS OF ALL CHILD TRAINING

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Every child should have instruction in the religion of his people and it should be begun when he is very young.
Do not have it doled out to him once a week merely. If he gets his only instruction about God in a place outside of his home, and by someone outside of his family, he will grow up, as many of us have before him, with a vague idea that God and that hazy thing called his soul are associated with the church on the corner, and with it only.
Teach God in the home and in daily life.
ENTITLED TO A BELIEF
There are certain things a child has a right to, just as he has a right to food and education. A belief in a higher power than himself is one of them.
He should grow up with his soul. Let him be made aware of it, even in a vague and probably material way.
Children are made aware of their bodies. They are taught how careful they must be of them, how to keep them clean and well and strong.
They know, too, that they have minds, and they are keenly alive to the disgrace it would be not to learn and remember and store up knowledge in them.
There we have the physical and mental ideal, but how about the moral?
It is impossible to separate the moral from that higher part of us that we call the soul.
Child-training without it would be like bread without yeast. It is the quickening of all real fitness and greatness.
SHOULD HAVE FOUNDATION
As a child grows older he may change his belief—he has right to that—but it is the duty of his parents to give him the foundation of soul and God to build on.
Show him God in nature, and in all beauty. How much more the world will mean to him as he grows up! Flowers, trees, birds, the ocean, the sky—teaches him reverence for the Great Power that made them.
Tell him how important it is to please God by being kind to all living things and particularly to people.
If his thoughts about God are vague they will clarify as he grows older. As I said, he may make his own interpretation then. But I should not think of trying to lay a foundation of character without the rock of religion under it.

JEAN PATOU HAS BARROOM FOR PATRONS

BY ALLENE SUMNER
Speaking of styles, Jean Patou, noted couturier, has installed a bar for the convenience of his lady patrons while waiting for fittings and so on. This is a for-women-only bar, and special cocktails to the woman's taste are prepared and offered here.
American husbands, when confronted by the first of the month bills or when ranting against prohibition, might console themselves by reflecting how much worse wifely bills might be in an open bar country.

Household Hints

NEAT DRESSERS
An excellent way to facilitate neatness in the dresser drawers is to fit a few separate boxes in, for handkerchiefs, gloves, trinkets and undies, and tack them all down to the drawer with thumb tacks.

NEW CASTLE
If you chop some sour grass or water cross into creamed potato soup, the soup itself will be a lovely color and the taste new and delicious. Serve with croutons.

HONEY DRESSING
Add a tablespoonful of honey to French dressing that you are going to serve with fruit. It makes a pleasant change.

HANDY CRACKER
A nut cracker may be used in emergency for such things as screw-pins, cans and bottles, with screw tops.

WHITE INK
When you need a little white ink and have none, try a solution of bicarbonate of soda.

SHIRRED EGGS
For Sunday breakfast, break an egg into each of the buttered dishes of a muffin pan. Add a tablespoon of cream, some butter and season. Cook in the oven and then brown slightly under the broiler.

CHILTON W. R. C. HOLDS BUSINESS GATHERING

Chilton — The Woman's Relief Corps met in regular session on Saturday afternoon, and following the business meeting the regular monthly birthday supper was served. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. Almada Miles, Mrs. Jos. McHugh, Mrs. Jacob Dohr, Mrs. Irma Schweitzer, Mrs. John Arps, Mrs. Herman Fiedler and Mrs. Barney Wolfe.

Mrs. John Arps was in New Holstein Monday to visit at the home of her daughter Mrs. Robert Heiner.

The Chilton high school basketball team played Sheboygan Falls on Friday evening at Sheboygan Falls and defeated them by a score of 13 to 9. It was necessary for the team to go by train, roads being too poor to permit automobile travel.

Mrs. James McGrath left for Menasha Monday morning to visit her mother and sister, Mrs. Giles Coon and Mrs. William McGrath. Both of the latter have been ill for several weeks with influenza.

Walter Kurtz returned Saturday from Chicago, where he attended the automobile show for several days.

William N. Knauf, Mrs. Rose Finger and Miss Tillie Juchem left Monday for Chicago to spend several days.

JUVENILE WORKER IS SPEAKER AT CLUB MEET
Chilton — The Woman's Club met at the Masonic Temple on Monday afternoon, and a child welfare program, under the direction of Mrs. Walter Reif, was given. The chief speaker was Miss Elizabeth Yerka, chairman of the juvenile department of the state board of control. Miss Yerka emphasized the importance of the work being done by the state conference social workers.

"It is time," the speaker said that rights of the child should be recognized, and to this end seven bills will soon be presented to the legislature dealing with the child welfare problem. One of them aims to supplement the mother's pension law which is entirely inadequate where the mother is a widow with several children to support. Many of these children become delinquent due to the fact that the mother is home so little that she can give them no supervision, and when she is at home she is too tired to give them either the spiritual or physical care which they need.

She urged all club women either to go to Madison when these bills are considered or to write to their representatives in the legislature. During her stay in this city Miss Yerka was the guest of Mrs. Reif.

UNIFORM TRAFFIC THROUGHOUT U. S.

Code Would Decrease Accidents, in Opinion of Those Backing Movement

BY WILLIAM E. BERCHTOLD (Associated Press Automobile Editor)

Washington — (AP) — A uniform system of traffic signals from coast to coast is the aim of a code designed to decrease motorists' confusion while driving through strange cities.

The motorist from Centerville who insists that the amber light is his signal to go whether he is in San Francisco, Chicago or Washington may have fewer arguments with traffic officers if the new code is adopted nationally.

Traffic engineers who prepared the code for the American Engineering council after a two year study of conditions in all cities with more than 50,000 population, say that most accidents and traffic delays can be attributed to the lack of uniformity among cities in their signals, signs and markings for regulation of street traffic.

No two cities in the United States, these experts observe, have exactly the same set of rules and system of markings to aid movement of traffic in safety. Their plan is to urge all cities to join in the adoption of a uniform system, which all motorists can readily understand and obey. The code, drawn up as the result of the two year study, soon will be placed in the hands of city traffic officials, engineers and manufacturers throughout the country.

If the code is adopted nationally, motorists driving from coast to coast would be guided by signs and signals of uniform size and of the same color combinations. They would know that a red signal would mean "stop" and remain halted until a green signal is displayed. They would know that green gives permission to go, subject to the safety of others; and that yellow after half a dozen lines.

Steps have been taken to form flying clubs, in many cases upon the instigation of the mayors of the various municipalities; flying clubs already organized have been aroused to the possibilities of the future; airport sites are being surveyed and discussed; and the dominion press has given an increasingly large place to air news.

There has been practically no flying in New Zealand of any commercial consequence, so that the new interest in air travel can be attributed wholly to the 14 and one-half hour flight of the Southern Cross with Capt. Kingford Smith and his crew, who had crossed the Pacific from the United States before attempting the flight from Australia to New Zealand.

Gates protecting railroad crossing would be marked with alternate black and white stripes sloping at an angle of 45 degrees.

The code, several thousand words in length, defines every detail in the construction and regulation of traffic signals, signs and markings for city use.

The body was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. C. Ziegler, at 1219 West Roger-st., Appleton. It will be brought to Stockbridge Tuesday morning where funeral services will be held at the Methodist Episcopal church at 11:30. Rev. W. B. Petrick will conduct the services. Interment will be held in the Hillside cemetery at Chilton.

JAZZ HARMONY MAKES FACTORY MEN PEPPY

Berlin — (AP) — To jazz up the work of thousands of its factory hands the management of the Siemens and Halske electric works has made the experiment of putting loudspeakers reproducing jazz music in some of its shops, especially in those in which smaller machines are manipulated by hand.

It is believed that the syncopated rhythm of this modern American music will prove a stimulus to snapper labor, it having become apparent already that the hands of the workers involuntarily begin to move in time to the music.

AVIATION LINKS LATIN AMERICANS INTO COMPACT UNIT

Airplane Business Has Had Tremendous Growth in South America

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
(Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.)
Washington — South America's greatest period of progress began when the automobile and the airplane were first indicating the part which they were to play in world civilization.

Hence the development of airways and highways in Latin America has been little short of spectacular. Passing through a period of development which corresponds to our big years of railroad expansion, South America will not become cluttered with any unnecessary trackage and equipment which might prove economically justified in the face of competition.

Today, where there were once dreams of expensive railroad systems one finds good roads pushing out into the interior. Today, where mountain ranges or jungles were once regarded as unsurmountable barriers, planes whiz overhead and reduce weeks of travel to hours.

There are perhaps less than 3,000 miles of paved roads in Latin America today, but large programs are being pushed in Salvador, Costa Rica, Peru, Chile, Venezuela, Colombia, Uruguay and Brazil. Many enthusiasts hope to see the day when a great international highway will attract American tourists down the South American west coast. The railroad interests of Argentina are making a last stand against highway development there, but it's a losing fight.

FAVORABLE TO AMERICANS

The advantages of our continental land hookup with South America, aviation will bring the two continents closer together for many mutual benefits in a way which cannot be duplicated by aviation efforts from Europe.

Proposed expansion of Pan-American airways will bring Valparaiso and Santiago within 50 hours of Washington. Paris is now nine days from Buenos Aires, through a combination of fast ship and plane service down the South American coast, subsidized by the French government.

Hardly anything ever grew quite as rapidly as the aviation business in Latin America. It has all happened in the last couple of years and today these nations have about two-thirds as much air mileage along regular schedule lines as we have in the United States.

New Orleans, Houston and Laredo are now connected by airlines with Mexico City and Tampico. Another service already contracted for will hook up Florida, Vera Cruz, Yucatan, Cuba, Haiti, Porto Rico and all the countries of Central America down to the Panama Canal. A proposed extension of the system would connect Porto Rico and Panama with Venezuela and Colombia. Meanwhile something of a Central American network appears to be developing.

NETWORK ACROSS CONTINENT

Air lines run now from Colombia, through Ecuador and Peru as far south as Chile, which expects before long to have commercial service between Santiago and Lima. A transcontinental line is soon expected to begin service between Santiago and Buenos Aires.

Colombia, Peru and Bolivia have commercial transport service into the interior. Paraguay and Buenos Aires will soon be connected by air service and on the east coast there are thriving lines operating from Buenos Aires to the extreme northwestern tip of Brazil.

Confidence in what aviation can do further for South America has just been demonstrated by Daniel Guggenheim's investment of $480,000 for its development in Chile.

The most successful air service now operating in South America is German concern which maintains daily, every-other-day and weekly services in Colombia and Ecuador. This company arrived on the grounds in 1920 and has paid dividends since 1922. It uses 13 planes, of which 12 are seaplanes. South America's big population centers are nearly all on the coast, which reduces expenses for plane service.

FOREIGN NATIONALS INTERESTED

German interests also operate the Bolivian air transport system and a 500-mile route between Rio de Janeiro and Rio Grande do Sul in Brazil, which is likely to be extended to Buenos Aires.

Latecoere, a subsidized French concern, operates the weekly service between Buenos Aires and the Brazilian island of Fernando de Noronha, where steamship connections are made with Europe. This is the company which now plans to connect Buenos Aires by air with Chile and Paraguay.

The Mexican government operates the daily service between Laredo and Mexico City. The Peruvian navy, which is under American supervision, runs the semi-weekly service from Lima to Iquitos on the Amazon and a private Peruvian company provides weekly service between Peru's coast. An American concern has a regular service in Honduras.

Pan-American Airways, Inc., maintains daily service between Miami and Havana and Miami and Nassau and has just opened up tri-weekly service from Havana to Haiti and Porto Rico. It expects before long to begin an impressive 2000 mile system from Miami to Panama, with stops in Tuxtla, British Honduras, Guatemala City, Tegucigalpa, Managua and San Jose.

More than 10,000 miles of air routes are now regularly operated south of the United States and the mileage will increase rapidly. Of the 99 planes in operation on these lines, about half were made in this country.

BRADFORD AGAIN NAMED PRESIDENT OF GAME SOCIETY

Conservation Workers Outline Bureau Activities at Annual Meeting

Conservation of fish and game was discussed, and officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Outgame Fish and Game association at Hotel Northern Monday night. A dinner at 6:30 preceded the meeting.

Attorney A. S. Bradford was re-elected president, and Henry Bowley again was elected secretary and treasurer, an office he has held for about 15 years. Directors elected were Roy Schultz, Appleton; J. Jansen; Kaukauna; Steve Otis, Hortonville; Carl M. Zschachner and M. M. Bacon, both of Appleton.

Stressing the need of clear water, "at least from a health standpoint," C. E. Culler, of the bureau of fisheries at LaCrosse, appealed to the association to do all it possibly can to clear waters in this vicinity of fifth.

"I notice you have chlorine in your water," he said. "I presume that is an indication that your water is not pure. Surely you want pure water if from no other standpoint but from health. And of course, if your water is not pure, you cannot expect to have any fish life of any consequence in this community."

Declaring that hunters and fishermen are practically the only people in the country whom the federal government takes any particular care of, Mr. Culler outlined the activities of the bureau of fisheries.

WORK IS DIVIDED

The bureau's activities come under four divisions, he pointed out. They are fish culture, scientific inquiry, fisheries industries, and the Alaska service. Last year the bureau handled about 7,000,000 eggs and fingerlings. It operates 26 main stations and five distribution cars.

The bureau's work in Wisconsin consists of trout propagation at the LaCrosse fishery, rescue work along the Mississippi River, and operation of cooperative ponds.

"The latter project, he said, is the only solution of the future of fishing in this country.

The importance of feeding game birds in winter was stressed by W. B. Grange, superintendent of the state game bureau.

"The only way to get game is to work and work hard," he said. "Winter feeding, especially during a winter of the kind we are experiencing this year, is absolutely necessary if our efforts at increasing game birds are not to be lost. Winter feeding is up to local people who belong to organizations of your kind, and who are willing to cooperate with the state bureau."

To become a conservationist, a hunter must pass through two stages, according to Mr. Grange. First he must accept without reservation the list of "do not" rules; that is, those which tell the hunter not to shoot before sunrise or after sunset, and not to shoot more than his quota.

HOW TO FEED BIRDS

Second, he must decide that an effort further than that of merely obeying the "do not" rules is necessary. After he has passed this stage, he has become a conservationist.

Mr. Grange told the association how it should approach the work of winter feeding. He suggested that the first essential is to get farmers interested in the project, and to induce them to work hand in hand with the association.

Then an intensive campaign should be conducted to enlist membership from the ranks of the farmers. Their dues could be in the form of corn, buckwheat, etc., a certain number of which could be left standing in the fields over winter for the birds to feed on.

Mr. Grange traced the history of the state game bureau. It was founded last May, and is just getting started in its work. A game farm was established in Door-co last summer, and approximately 500 pheasants are there now. The bureau hopes this number will be increased to 700 this year. Last year about 10,000 eggs were distributed in the state, and about 2,300 pheasants were raised. It is hoped that it will be possible to raise 2,000 this year.

Attorney Bradford reviewed the association's activities of last year. He reported that 150 pheasant eggs were secured, 90 of which were received from the state and the remainder purchased. About 65 were hatched, and 14 raised to maturity. More adult birds were bought, and about 50 were freed in the town of Greenville.

He also reported discontinuation of the Red and Gun club of Hortonville, and a donation of $50 by the club to the association. The money to be used for the distribution of pheasants in the vicinity of Hortonville.

STRESSES NEEDS FOR FARM CO-OP MARKETING

Madison — (P) — Cooperative marketing of livestock was a point stressed by Charles E. Snyder, Chicago, editor of the Drovers Journal, at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Livestock and Meat Improvement council held here Monday, the opening day for the Farmers' and Home-makers' week program.

Critics Praise Pianist

Alexander Brailowsky, famous Russian pianist who will play at Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening as the fourth number of the Community Artist Series.

CRITICS PRAISE GREAT PIANIST

Brailowsky Has Won Fame on Three Continents

It almost looks like critics are striving to outdo each other in using superlatives in praise of Alexander Brailowsky, famous Russian pianist who is to play at Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening.

Brailowsky should be termed a "composite" rather than a Russian for he has lived all over the world, and divides his time equally between North America, South America and Europe. However, it is Russia who claims this "passionate poet" of the piano, as he has so often been called.

Born in Kiev, Russia, his family transplanted to Vienna so that the young Alexander might study with the great Leschetizsky. After the war Brailowsky and his family migrated to France. Concert tours through Europe followed, and soon after that came his successful visits to North and South America. He has created a furor everywhere he has been heard, and is considered by music critics as one in the front ranks of young genius.

WANTS CORONERS TO APPOINT DEPUTIES

Madison — (P) — County coroner's deputies on much the same legal plan as deputy sheriffs would be provided in a bill E. E. Husband, Assemblyman from Polk-co. presented in the lower house of the legislature Tuesday.

The bill would allow the coroner to select a deputy who would act in his absence or inability to serve, and in cases to which he was detailed by the coroner. He would serve at the coroner's pleasure.

Assemblyman C. A. Budon Mariette presented a bill putting this paragraph into the law:

"No justice of the peace shall have criminal jurisdiction of offenses committed in the city, nor power to issue a warrant for, examine, commit or hold to bail any persons charged with an offense."

This would return the law to its wording of 1925. He explained that in some instances justices of the peace remote from the scene of law violation are asked for warrants or to examine violators; that the fees for sheriffs and other costs to the coroner are therefore greater than necessary because of the distance to court.

show the possible economic ways of shipping to avoid injuries to cattle, pointing out that out of 150,000 hogs slaughtered at one plant, a total of 15,000 were defective because of bruises they received in shipments.

Possible methods in which farmers can help themselves in carrying out a farm relief program were outlined by Prof. E. H. Hibbard, agricultural economist at the state university. They are, in part, efficient business methods, better marketing and regulation of output, production of raw materials for use in industry besides food products, and a more thorough study of the budget system.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and loosen the phlegm upwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the price. From any drug store, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Put this in a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the bottle. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germs and phlegm and soothes the inflamed membrane. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "dry" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of resinolein, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest health agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

UNIVERSITY ASKS $10,000 TO CARRY ON FOR TWO YEARS

President Frank Too Ill to Explain Request to Committee

Madison — (P) — Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, Tuesday asked the joint finance committee of the legislature to postpone for about a week its summons to him to explain the $10,000,000 University budget. The president has been suffering a severe cold and is under doctors orders to remain inactive during convalescence this week.

The joint finance committee program of hearings is already prepared, but the chairman were expected to agree on some other financial investigation until next week, when Dr. Frank considers it possible that he may appear.

Dr. Frank will outline the needs of the university for a requested appropriation of $5,399,957, for the first year of the biennium and $5,517,575 for the second year.

These amounts are for specific tasks to which the university would set itself and are exclusive of the revolving fund which takes care of many of the university's functions other than educational.

It is estimated that the university will earn $661,105 in the first year of the biennium from athletic contests and similar sources and that the revenue of this type for the second year of the biennium be $571,440. These amounts go into the state treasury for university use, and therefore cut down appropriation amounts to $4,738,852 for the first year and $4,946,138 for the second.

None of these amounts include buildings. The university has a $3,340,210 building to be spread over a period of probably four years.

The revolving funds, derived from operation of various eating establishments, the dormitories, the Memorial Union and the agricultural college farms, are expected to reach $2,200,000 in the first year and $2,010,875 in the second year. But all of the money taken in, say, in the cafeteria, go back into food and waste service, and the funds go back into sale of farm products or back into equipment and seeds for the next crops.

NAME TWO EDITORS OF HIGH SCHOOL HANDBOOK

Miss Betty Beyer '30 and Gordon Holtermann '31 were appointed co-editors of the "Blue and Orange" Appleton high school handbook at a meeting of the Student Council Monday afternoon. The handbook is published annually by the student council with a junior and a sophomore member of the council as editors. Work on the handbook is completed during the summer and copies are distributed to students at the beginning of the next term.

Charles Schaefer reported on the work of the committee in charge of the pep session for the Appleton-West Green game Friday night which the council is sponsoring. Other members of the committee are Norbert Berg and Robert Kunitz.

Lawrence Vikings Lose Third Straight Game Monday

DROP CLOSE GAME TO BELOIT FIVE IN FINAL SECONDS

Bigger and Schneller Star With Six and Five Baskets

Beloit—Trailing by seven points in the final four minutes, Beloit college cagers staged a sensational rally to defeat Lawrence here Monday afternoon in a Little Four conference game, 61 to 30.

With the score at 30 to 23 and Lawrence ahead, Jack and Louis Bottino looped short baskets in succession and then Thostenson, who had been substituted late in the second half tried a long shot that missed. He followed in, however, took the ball off the board and converted it into two points. The officials ruled that he was fouled in so doing and he netted both free throws just as the final gong sounded.

Beloit took an early lead and was in front, 15 to 12, midway. Lawrence spurred soon after the closing chapter started and forged to the front until Beloit nipped them in the final minute.

Thostenson, who scored eight points in the few minutes he played, tied with Jack and Louis Bottino for starring honors with Beloit. Schneller and Bigger, who counted twenty-five points between themselves, led the Lawrence attack.

The victory was Beloit's third straight, while the loss was Lawrence's first in the Little Four conference.

MILWAUKEE AND WEST ALLIS COP BOWLING HONORS

Penetrate Into All Ranks at Sheboygan Except All Events

SHEBOYGAN—(P)—Thumping the ten pins at a ferocious clip during the entire day, the star players from Milwaukee and West Allis penetrated into the ranks of the leaders in every division save the all-events, and the pace setter in this event also narrowly escaped being dethroned.

A new doubles combination, E. Mueller and R. Riepel, of Milwaukee, blasted and rumbled their way into the lead in the two men event, displacing J. Peterson-C. Sievers, of Kenosha, the reigning duo in the event almost since the beginning of state tournament.

The sensational Milwaukee pair scattered the glossy sticks for counts of 433, 458 and 407 and a grand total of 1298, bettering the previous mark by 42 pins. Riepel turned in a 246 score during his sojourn on a drives.

N. Day, rolling under the West Allis colors, was the individual star of the day, narrowly missing first place in the all-events. He had had an individual count of 647, good for sixth place, and paired with R. Gruber, shot 1231 in the doubles, his share amounting to 630.

A mediocre count in the five men event prevented Day from crashing into first in all-events and J. Peterson, of Kenosha, maintained that perch of honor.

The Becker Recreations of Milwaukee clinched fifth in the five-men event with 2849.

A trio of West Allis stars menaced the individual leaders. They were Day, J. Thiede and S. Movietech. Thiede rolled 224, 232 and 193 for 649 and Movietech was deadlocked with Day for fifth and sixth places with 647.

OUT OF THE PAST

UNTIL a few years ago the presence of women at boxing matches was looked upon with something akin to horror. That one of the fair sex should mingle with the rough element which peopled fistic clubs in the old days never failed to call forth appropriate shouts of indignation.

As in every other walk of life, times have changed in boxing. Now the women in evening dress are thickly clustered at all big fights, and there is no comment. Women, as spectators, have come to stay, but many years went by before their presence was generally accepted.

It is widely believed that the first fight attended by women was the Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle in 1897 at Carson City, Nev. This, however, is incorrect, as 10 years before that historic struggle, ladies were despatched visitors at bouts in Gus Hill's dance hall in New York.

Gus Hill's emporium, located on Bowery at the corner of Houston-st., flourished in the bare-knuckle days, and was the most famous meeting place for sportsmen in America. No champion or near champion visiting this country from abroad, or for that matter, no leading fighter from his country felt he had seen America before paying a visit to Gus Hill's.

Many boxers, before making a public appearance, would test their ability at Hill's, and these bouts were watched nightly by men—and many women. Such a scene is depicted above in this copy of a wood cut which appeared in Leslie's Weekly in 1888. It was taken from life, and a fair idea of the number of women to attend such bouts can be obtained.

Today Hill's dance hall lives only in memory. The old walls have been demolished, and the site is occupied by a furrier—a long way from the scenes there enacted 40 years ago.

Around The Sport World

WHY THEY LIKE HIM
The Babe recently had a tragic experience. He was in the news as he never had before and the experience was far from pleasant. Reporters and photographers dogged him to death even after he had given out a statement that should have satisfied the needs of the papers.

Some of the papers were rough on him. They tried to pry into his private life with the main story. The words of propriety were trampled when one reporter sneaked into the room where he was taking his last farewell of the dead.

He went back to New York and they didn't leave him alone. The story was out of the papers, but the editors of a few papers wanted to know some more things and they chased unwilling reporters out on the job.

RAN HIM RAGGED
The Babe had to change his place of residence four times in one day. He had to go in and out of back doors, but the trained reporters were always a half block behind him.

With a look behind him in an automobile there was a taxi behind him.

U. W. BALL TEAM WILL START PRACTICE SOON

Madison—(P)—With a possible trip to Austria in view, candidates for the University of Wisconsin baseball team will begin their season practices Feb. 11, the day the second school semester opens, according to Coach Guy S. Lowman. Previous to examinations, pitchers and catchers had reported for practice, but other players had not.

Working in the gymnasium here under Coaches Lowman and Irvin C. Uteritz, the Wisconsin baseball team plays baseball on a "pocket-sized" diamond. As the players limber up, Lowman engages his squad in regular inning games, in a place where long clouds travel 70 feet.

With the severe winter the state has had, Coach Lowman points out it is improbable that his squad will get any outdoor work until it leaves on its annual training trip through the southern group of the middle-western states.

Oldest With His Club
Although he is only 28 years old, Gabby Hartnett is the oldest member of the Chicago Cubs in point of service.

TUFFY GRIFFITH WINS BOUT IN CHICAGO

Chicago—Tuffy Griffith, rising young Iowa light heavyweight, Monday added another name to the rapidly growing list of victims of his punching power by stopping Billy Frazz in the seventh round at White City.

Griffith had all the better of the going in every round and in the fourth dropped Frazz for a short count. The Detroitier was groggy and nearly out when Referee Joe McNamara stopped the fight after the seventh round had progressed less than a minute.

OSHKOSH GIVEN THE 1930 STATE BOWLING MEET BY DIRECTORS

Sheboygan—(P)—Selection of Oshkosh as the city for the twenty-eighth annual state bowling tournament next year was made on the first ballot Monday afternoon when directors of the state association met in the Eagles' auditorium.

The unsuccessful cities in the bidding were Milwaukee, Kenosha and Fond du Lac.

It was revealed that Oshkosh was chosen because that city has not been host to the state bowlers for 19 years. The city has new bowling alleys and enlarged hotel accommodations.

CARROLL PIONEERS PLAY RIPON TUESDAY

Waukesha Collegians Hope to Stage Comeback in Cage Circles

Waukesha—Carroll's Pioneer cage team, having lost its first two Little Four conference basketball games to Beloit and Lawrence by small scores, will engage Ripon here Tuesday night in its third league game. The Ripon Redmen are sharing the league lead with Lawrence, while Carroll is on the bottom for the first time in five years.

Carroll colleges against the Northwestern showed five last week by defeating that team, 40 to 12, is indication that the Pioneers are on an upward climb and will be high in the running before the close of the season. The poor start of the Carroll aggregation is attributed largely to over confidence which the team possessed earlier in the season. It stepped out and won its first three games with ease and then lapsed back and lost two straight by margins of one and three points respectively.

Herb Bizer, star Carroll guard, is tied with Halverson of Ripon, for conference scoring honors, having tallied sixteen points. Three other Carroll men are in the list of the ten highest scorers. They are: Kemphorne, Wolfe, and Luck. While the Ripon varsity is playing here the Carroll freshman team will play Ripon freshmen on the Ripon court.

HALVERSON TO PLAY
Ripon—Coach Russell Rippe's Ripon Redmen warriors hurried through a flashy offensive drill tonight in preparation for the traditional battle at Waukesha with Carroll Armstrong's Pioneers Tuesday evening. Coach Rippe will move his entire varsity squad to the Carroll hardwoods.

Still recovering from illness which barred him from Ripon's last four games, Cliff Halverson, veteran Ripon sharp shooter, donned a uniform today for a brief drill. Halverson has slumped up considerably as a result of the flu attack and had some trouble locating the hoop. The Midwest and Little Four scoring area is expected to see action against the Carroll basketbatters, however.

QUARANTINE LIFTED FROM WHITE'S HOME

Green Bay—Coach H. "Murrin" White, of West high, has been confined to his home with influenza and scarlet fever for the past four weeks, is completely recovered today and the quarantine has been lifted from his home. Mr. White will not be able to resume his duties for two weeks at the school, however, as a board of education ruling prevents anyone returning to school until fourteen days after a quarantine has been lifted.

STIRLING BARRED FROM USING PLANE

Ma and Pa Differ on Effect Verdict Will Have on W. L.

Miami Beach, Fla.—A marked variance of opinion evidence itself among those directly and indirectly affected by Jack Dempsey's announcement today that he had instructed attorneys to file injunction proceedings to keep Young Stirling from piloting his plane, or flying in other planes, prior to the Macon boxer's fight with Jack Sharkey here on Feb. 27.

The air minded heavyweight contended himself with the assertion that he had "nothing to say" to the Giants. Others were not so non-committal. "Pa" Stirling expressed the opinion that it was "too bad" because such a move would place a ban on "the best relaxation the kid can get."

"Ma" Stirling, on the other hand, declaring the idea unreservedly, declaring no court injunction would be necessary to keep her son out of the air so far as she was concerned.

Both Stirling and Sharkey continued to take the matter of serious training in the light of something to be done in the future. Though the Maconia put in two and a half miles of road work.

SEYMOUR FARMERS IN ARMS BECAUSE ROADS ARE CLOSED

No Effort Has Been Made to Open Highway 55 South from Seymour

While the county highway committee was visiting neighboring counties today to see what they have done about clearing snow from their highways, farmers living on Highway 55, between the junction with County Trunk S and the city of Seymour, were condemning the county highway commission because they are unable to get to Seymour, even with teams, unless they drive through fields.

Up until Monday noon no effort had been made to open Highway 55 north of Murphy's corner to Seymour and the road is drifted to badly that even teams are unable to get through.

Charles Stewart, who lives five miles south of Seymour and a half mile west of Highway 55 says the only way he can get to Seymour is to travel two miles further west and take the old road to the city. The road from his home to Highway 55 is impassable but the main highway is in such condition that it cannot be used.

Considerable discussion has been caused in the county by the articles and pictures describing the machinery in the snow at the county garage on Highway 76. The general feeling is that the county board or the highway committee has been highly negligent in failing to provide shelter for expensive county equipment. More pictures are printed on this page to show additional machinery buried in the snow.

FILIPPINOS ALWAYS THINK OF FREEDOM

Islanders Haven't Given Up
Their Aspirations for Independence

Manila —(AP)— Gov. Gen. Henry L. Stimson's program of cooperation and economic development in the Philippines has relegated independence agitation to a secondary position, but the Filipinos have by no means given up their aspiration for political freedom.

Another factor, besides the Stimson administration, which has tended to put the soft pedal on independence agitation for the time being, was the republican victory in the national election in the United States. The republican party is regarded as not being "sympathetic" that is with anything in sympathy with the Filipinos' independence aspiration. Therefore, what was the use of agitating when it would do no good. Had the democrats gone into power, it would have been a different matter. Since that party had a Philippine independence plank in its platform, an intense independence campaign would have started immediately.

One such occasion on which the independence question pushed itself forward through the factor mentioned are tending to keep it in the background was Bonifacio Day recently. On this day, each year, Filipinos honor the memory of Andres Bonifacio, who in 1896 led the first of the Philippine revolution against Spain in 1896, led his countrymen to victory at Balintawak.

Typical of the many speeches delivered that day was that of Jorge Bocobo, dean of the college of law, University of the Philippines, and one of the outstanding advocates of independence.

"It may be," Dean Bocobo said in conclusion, "that our perpetual subjection is written on the tablets of Destiny. It may be that our endeavors for independence are useless and chimerical. But we should be undeserving of freedom if we did not strive for it with all our might, whatever odds may be ahead."

MAIL PLANES GET WARNINGS OF ICE

Salt Lake City —(AP)— Eleven air mail planes operated by the Varney Air Lines with an eastern terminus here soon will be equipped with new ice warning instruments to aid pilots in flying through cold, wet skies. Ice is a great hazard to airplanes, often forcing them down when heavy coatings form on the wings and cut down the aerodynamic efficiency. The pilot's only aid is to know the temperature and atmospheric conditions along the wing surfaces of his plane so that he may avoid areas that are likely to increase the ice hazard.

The new instrument was developed by the Moto Meter company of New York and exhibited at the Chicago air show for the first time. With it the pilot can, when warned, seek a new air level.

LEGLESS JUDGE HEADS NEW ZEALAND COURTS

Wellington, New Zealand — (AP)— Legless, but not down-hearted, Sir Charles Skerrett, K. C., chief justice for New Zealand, is resuming his presidency over the supreme court here on Feb. 5.

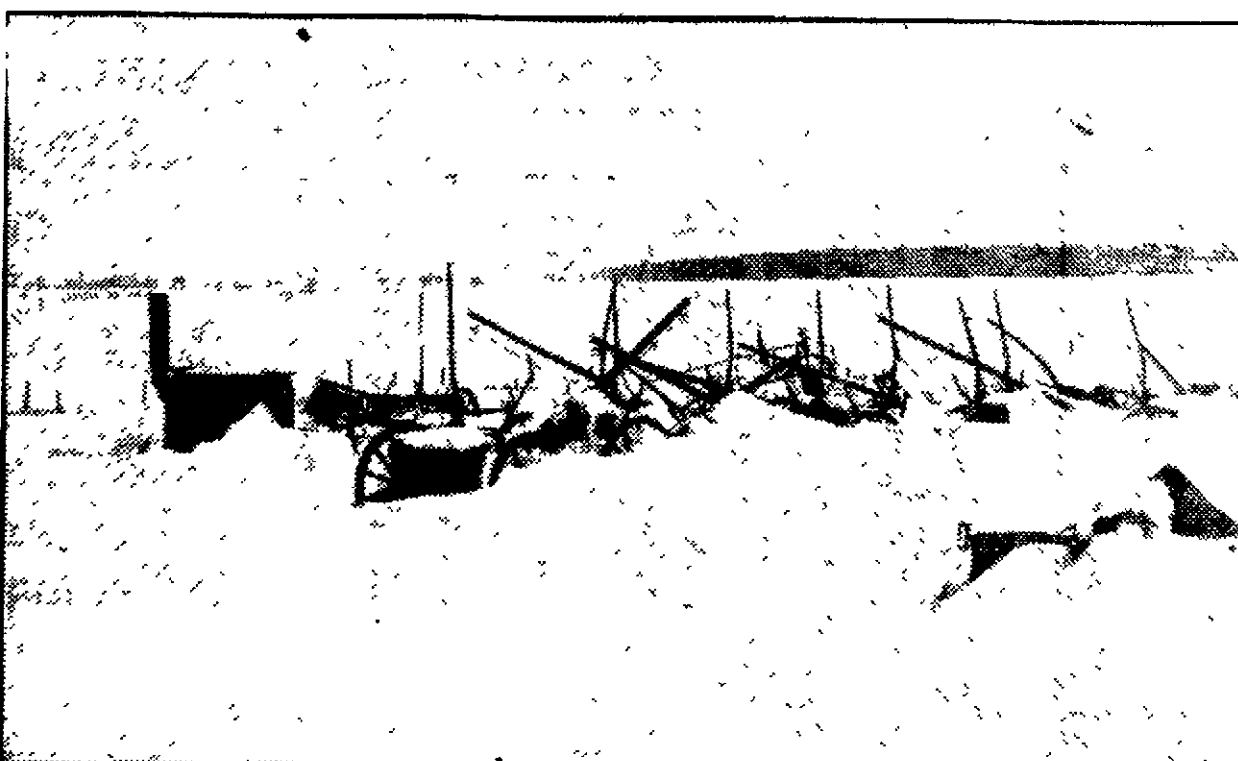

When Sir Charles was obliged to have both legs amputated recently his friends feared that his career might be interfered with, but the chief justice calmly determined to carry on and has made a remarkable recovery.

Sir Charles was born in India and was admitted to the bar in 1885. He was one of the first group to "take silk" as a king's counsel when barristers were first appointed to that honor in New Zealand, in 1907. He was elevated to the position of chief justice in 1926, in succession to Sir Robert Stout.

Principals Meet

The regular meeting of high school principals will be held Wednesday morning in the office of Superintendent R. J. Rohan. Matters relating to the administration of the senior and three minor high schools will be discussed.

More County Equipment Buried in Snow

Here are two more pictures showing Outagamie-co highway equipment buried in snow at the county garage on highway 76. The upper picture shows a gasoline engine mounted on wheels visible above the snow and in the lower picture a number of road scrapers, tire kettles and other equipment is seen.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE, sailing on the Isle de France for a honeymoon in Paris, had rather an odd experience. A little tired of her husband's lovelornness, and bored with his compliments, she slipped out on deck one night. Standing alone under the stars, she was conscious of the presence of a man, lurking in the shadows. She recited a bit of verse for his benefit, and turned her perfect profile toward the shadows. HOLLIS HART, her husband, was dancing with Lady Mary Somebody or other, and Ashtoreth would rather have enjoyed meeting a strange man. But, just as he stepped forward, presumably to speak to her, Hollis opened the door, and stepped over the high brass sill onto the deck. The stranger promptly retreated.

Later, Ashtoreth dreams of an old sweetheart, MONTY ENGLISH, and imagines that he is in Paris.

In Paris they register at the Ritz, and Hollis (who is a millionaire) begins to shower his little bride with expensive and gorgeous gifts.

Marriage is not quite the joy she had imagined it would be. Possibly that is because Ashtoreth is 25, and her husband so much older—old enough, in fact, to be her father. But then he is wonderfully good to her, and as generous as any man on earth. He calls her ORCHID, because she reminds him of the flowers, and because he believes she is the loveliest thing in the world.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

Hollis was always bringing back surprises. The amethyst ear drops, for example, that hung like clusters of little translucent grapes, were down to Ashtoreth's shoulders. A choker of black pearls, with a ring for her first finger, to match. And a negligee that was multi-colored, and shimmering as clouds at sunset. With mules, besides, that were made from the breasts of humming birds. He took her to Patroux's, and Ashtoreth and London is long. To say nothing of Jenny and Henriette, and any number of other places, too. And she bought sport clothes and afternoon frocks and dinner gowns. With hats, and scarves, and lingerie to match. It was tremendously exciting, and lots of fun. But Ashtoreth was growing restless. And sometimes, she was homesick.

Mazie had written by every boat. She said that to see Dan Corwin the day Ashtoreth was married. She felt just awful about the thing she said, and hoped Ashtoreth would forgive her. She was back at the flat, and lots of company. The bank deposit Hollis had made to Mazie's account was still untouched, and please God, she'd never go near it. For she might be poor, but she still had her pride.

When she read her mother's letters, Ashtoreth was always filled with a tremendous urge to go out any but things. Silk dresses, and bottles of perfume and scented face powders. Gloves, and a silk umbrella, with a jade duck for a handle. An antelope handbag and material for an evening gown—poppies and morning glories in a sea of quiver.

She sent them all to Mazie, with oceans of love, and unnumerable little crosses that stood for kisses.

Mazie never said anything about Monty. But Ashtoreth always looked for him as she walked along the park, or stopped at the side, or at cafes, or at an art and a cup, sweet croissants. Sometimes somewhere—she was going to bump into him. She had felt it, in her bones, ever since that night when she dreamed he was in a dark corner, and someone was dropping anchors on him.

From Paris they went to Venice. With sashes, and ribbons fluttering from sailor hats such as little curls used to wear, potted them up and down the Grand Canal. But it was cold on the water. And even the pigeons, pecking apathetically in St. Mark's square, were shivering.

Venice had been Ashtoreth's idea. But now that she was there, it was cruelly disappointing. Hollis, "that it wasn't the season," "But you didn't want to go to London either," she argued. "Of course not. It's deathly in London now. Egypt is the only place in mid-winter."

"But I don't want to go to Egypt," she protested unreasonably. "Nothing but a lot of old mummies, and the desert. Let's go back to Paris." So they motored along the Italian Riviera, through Nice and Cannes, where perfumes are made from real flowers. And Ashtoreth bought quarts of distilled fragrance for Mazie, and sent them in the Leviathan, in a special mail sack so they wouldn't be spilled.

Back in Paris, she decided to take French lessons. And cooking lessons at the Cordon Bleu. And riding lessons in the Bois. She felt quite important, hurrying from one appointment to another. But when she had nothing more to do, she used to envy the shop girls, and the models, whose lives were full and busy, as hers was once. Hollis had insisted that she engage a maid. An English woman to draw her bath, and pick her clothes up off the floor. To comb her hair and slip her feet in the little humming bird mules. And bring her chocolate and croissants in bed. As a matter of fact, it was Hollis who engaged the woman. Ashtoreth herself would never have dared talk to a lady's maid. The woman's name was Mazie Moggis, and she rather overawed her mistress.

Hollis was somewhere playing tennis. Ashtoreth didn't play, and she didn't like to watch. He had driven out in the Hispano-Suiza and she had planned to poke around a little by herself. Hollis had never taken her to Saint Charles, or to see his "favorite" girl in all the world—the Madonna of Notre Dame. Ashtoreth wondered if it was because he was disappointed in her. If Paris had ceased to be the lovely adventure for him it used to be. And if that was because she was not to him all the things he had dreamed.

Well, she'd go to those places herself and tell him. Ashtoreth was so sure that she was appreciative of art and beauty and history. She bought a guide book and set out determinedly. The day was warm, like Spring in Boston. And there were lovely things blossoming in the flower market. Hollis thought that made her think of Mazie and mauve tulips and daffodils. She bought a bunch of violets for four farthings.

"Sixteen cents," she thought. "Why they'd be three dollars at home." And she gave the old flower woman the change from a franc note. It was pleasant to have an extraordinary amount of change and appreciation for 25 cents. She pinned the violets to the collar, interrupted, "when your but-

of her squirrel coat and remembered that her little felt hat was the same shade. She knew she looked very beautiful, because people stared at her admiringly and made comments on her clothes and her appearance. They knew that she was a rich American and tried to sell her more flowers and love birds in wooden cages.

She shook her head and said "Non, non, Madame." Meriel, Monsieur non. And smiled at everyone, and handed francs to their children. And felt like a Stylish Saint, with a great deal of chic and a warm, tender heart.

There was a man following her. An American, she thought. But she did not like to turn around. It might of course be a Frenchman. Frenchmen were always following women. She rather hoped, though. So they motored along the Italian Riviera, through Nice and Cannes, where perfumes are made from real flowers. And Ashtoreth bought quarts of distilled fragrance for Mazie, and sent them in the Leviathan, in a special mail sack so they wouldn't be spilled.

She crossed the street, to the cafe on the corner. One new thing about cafes, they were simply everywhere. She seated herself and began assiduously to study a menu. The man, who might be an American, was at her elbow. She drew her brows together. Little imperiously and glanced up.

"Monty," she cried. "Monty English!" He remained standing, smiling down at her. "Monty, darling," she exclaimed. "Monty, am I dreaming?" She jumped to her feet. "Oh! Oh! I never was so surprised in all my life. Where did you come from. Monty?"

"Well," he bantered, "if it isn't Missus Millions herself! And glad to see the boy-friend of mine." "Glad," she said, "but I can't eat Monty. I never was so glad to see anybody before. Sit down, Monty. Give me your hands. See, I'm trembling. Oh, it's good to see you. You didn't know who was following you?" he laughed. "But you thought you'd find out. Ash, you're a hypocrite, and I love you. Striding through the Place there, like a plaster saint handing out francs and smiles to warm a poor frog's heart. All dolled up like the Queen of Sheba and playing Lady Beautiful like a fair tale."

"But where did you come from," she demanded. "And how long have you been following me?" "Monty lit a cigarette. "It's a long story," he said. "What do you want to eat, Ash?" "I don't know," she said, "but I can't eat Monty. I only want to listen." "Patience!" he told the waiter. "Get out a half bottle of Madame. Come pour me, will you?" "You talk French, Monty?" "Just showing off," he admitted. "But I'm talking French." "What are you doing here?" "I don't know. Missus Millions passed up a globe trotter, did you tell me, Missus Millions? When did you come to Paris?" "On the Isle de France, the same one you did."

Ashtoreth grew deathly pale. "I knew it," she told him. "You told me one night on the promenade deck of the ship. That's right," he agreed. "You were all done up in a sparkling sort of a gown, around you leaning over the railing, wishing on the first star."

"But I don't understand," she cried. "Why didn't I see you?" "Why didn't you speak to me?" "Where did you keep yourself?" "Where were you on the Isle de France?" "I was going to ask you that."

She pinned the violets to the collar, interrupted, "when your but-

OXFORD WOMEN DEBATE SIN OF INNOCENCE

Oxford —(AP)— The Fifth Deadly Sin has been debated by women undergraduates here. It is Innocence.

This wide-eyed virtue of Victorian days was laid bare of its trappings by relentless members of the St. Hilda's College debating society at a recent discussion of "Pacifism, Victorianism and the Eighth Deadly Sin—Innocence."

Women are still debarrd from the Union, Oxford's famous male debating society, but their own organization is fast gaining a rival reputation for effectiveness. Every conceivable problem is brought before the women student members and enthusiastically thrashed out by their star debaters of whom there are a growing number.

came out. He put his arms around you, Ash and kissed you. It was his right, of course. You were his wife. But I never wanted to see you again after that."

She touched his hand across the table. "I'm not much on poetry. Ash, I'm not much on speeches either. Only—in school it was—I read Othello. I was only a kid then, but it made a big hit with me. It's a peach of a love story, you know. Hot stuff, too. But what I started to say was—then some lines in it that have stuck in my memory. All these years. They came back to me that night when I saw you in another man's arms. Shall I tell you what they are, Ash?"

She inclined her head and he leaned toward her, speaking softly. "I had rather be a toad and live upon the vapour of a dungeon, than keep a corner in the thing I love for others' uses."

Ashtoreth shivered. "I know," he said. "Cuckoo and all that. Mrs. Hollis Hart, getting kissed by her husband. And a poor oil can like me getting all worked up. No sense to it. Plain dam' foolishness, no having the nerve to get jealous. But I'm one of those unreasonable cuses and I can't seem to get over it. Ash. No—not if you were married to all the men and millions from here to Hongkong."

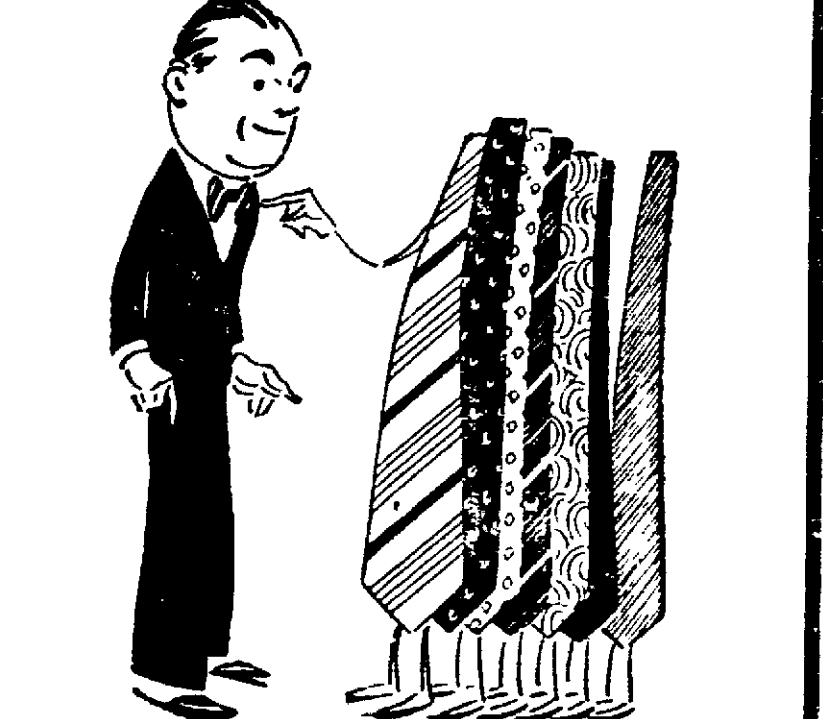

"But, Monty—you darling silly!" "I know," he agreed. "That's why I went down to the second class."

"Sure I did. Why not? Couldn't you get jealous loved down there?" "Oh, my dear!"—She patted his hand understandingly. "You haven't told me yet, Monty, what you're doing over here."

"Me? What do you suppose? I'm selling radishes. Great business too. Ash. Remember, when I wanted to meet you at the pier—well, that was the news I had for you. And when you let me down, I sent you another wire, saying I had to see you on an important business. I was sailing in three days, Ash. And I was going to ask you to come over with me. It wouldn't have been the bridal suite you had with him. But—oh, hell!"

Monty tossed his hat across the table and buried his face in his hands. "Tell me, Ash, are you happy, dear?"

(To Be Continued)
Now, if you were Ashtoreth, what do you suppose you'd have said? "Happy?" she repeated. "Why?" read the next chapter.

The Inaugural Pageant FROM WASHINGTON TO HOOVER

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington —(AP)— The inauguration of James Monroe, political disciple of Jefferson and last of the great Virginians to be called to the presidential duty in the early days of the republic, was held outdoors for the first time in Washington.

He took the oath of office March 4, 1817, on a portico erected for the occasion in front of the capitol. The press of the day described two persons for the change in arrangement—fear that the building was not strong enough to hold the vast assemblage and a quarrel between the house and the senate over the distribution of seats in the house of representatives where the ceremony was customarily held.

In contrast with the modern inaugural tradition of wretched weather, "the mildness and radiance of the day cast a brilliant hue on the complexion of the entire ceremony."

Such a concourse never before was seen in Washington, the number of persons present being estimated at 10,000 to 20,000. There was no accident during the day, notwithstanding the multitude of the assemblage.

The ceremonies were simple but grand, impressive and impressive. The administration of the oath by Chief Justice Marshall was announced by a bugle call and followed by salutes from the navy yard, a battery from Fort Mifflin and several pieces of artillery on the grounds. Ladies as well as gentlemen, foreign officers, strangers and others, were in the great concourse.

The restoration of the executive mansion, the "executive office" burned by the British army in 1814, was completed and the White House was opened to the public for the first time at a reception January 1, 1818.

The Monroes possessed wealth and social distinction and in the diplomatic service had cultivated a taste for the luxuries of European courts. To furnish the White House, the president had imported a furniture and decorations of the Empire style. The great crowd at the reception marveled at the grandeur of the new mansion with its rich French furnishings, exquisite china and heavy all-plate.

The first lady, Eliza Kortright Monroe, daughter of a New York city man and former British army officer, was described as being "roughly schooled in the social graces of the period." A New Year's reception at the president's residence is contrasted in a contemporary letter written by a Mrs. Tulley of Virginia.

"Mr. Monroe was standing near the door and as we were introduced we had the honor of shaking hands with him and passing the usual congratulations. My impressions of Monroe are very pleasing. He is tall and well formed, his dress plain and in the old style—small clothes—black hose, knee buckles and pumps fastened with buckles.

"We passed on and were presented to Mrs. Monroe and her daughters. Mrs. Monroe's manner is very gracious and she is a real looking lady. Her dress was a superb black velvet, neck and arms bare and beautifully formed. Her hair in puff, and dressed high on the head and ornamented with white ostrich plumes; around her neck an elegant pearl necklace. Though no longer young, she is still a very handsome woman.

"All the lower rooms were opened and they were warmed by great fires of hickory wood and with the hand some brass andirons and fenders quite reminded me of our grand old wood fires in Virginia. Wine was handed about in wine glasses, on large silver salvers, by colored wait-

DIRECTORS MEET

The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Appleton World's club will be held at the club rooms Thursday afternoon. The meeting will begin at 2:30.

Every bite of food you eat MUST be digested, and the waste matter eliminated. That's sure. If your stomach is sluggish and old, from the excessive acids which keep eating away at the gastric juices, you must dissolve them, or you never will be free from indigestion, sour stomach, bloating and drowsiness after a meal.

Get a package of Pape's Diaphrasin from your nearest drug store and chew one of the lozenges after meals. Instantly the digestive is relaxed, it dissolves the acids, sweetens the stomach and you will have an appetite again like you had when a child. All drug stores have Pape's Diaphrasin. More than 5 million packages are used a year.

How Glass Is Made

Here is shown the process of making the enormous plate glass shop windows seen in the cities. A swinging crane brings the pot of molten glass above the heavy iron table, pouring it out after which a great roller passes over it. Then the glass is polished and trimmed.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-24

Nitrate of silver, poured upon the back of glass plates, makes the glass opaque, in the process of making mirrors.

After the silver is dried, a coat of varnish and then one of black paint is spread over the glass.

At the left of this picture two men are blowing and shaping a huge demijohn which will hold several gallons when completed. The weight of the glass is so great that one man cannot handle it alone. (Next: Golden Deeds)

SECONDARY SCHOOL IS ESSENTIAL FOR VOCATIONAL WORK

No Other Agency Universal Enough, According to National Educator

BY HOMER J. SMITH
(President, Department of Vocational Education, National Education Association)

Minneapolis--(P)--True vocational education must, in large measure, come through the public secondary school. No other agency is sufficiently universal to attain it.

The increase of enrollment at this level is a matter of common knowledge, while there is less consciousness that the average entrant is longer retained and more certain to be graduated. Few have yet sensed the fact that these conditions supply a secondary group of gradually lowering average ability.

This is not to say that young people today are possessed of more worthwhile and better organized information than were their parents at equal ages. It would be a return for expenditure on the study of objectives, administration, methods and materials if they were not. Reference is made here merely to the ability to learn and to attainment to the degree of selection that obtains. (One cannot to repeatedly to the same field of corn and return with armfuls of ears equally good to the eye or by specific measurement and grading.)

And this changing personnel for corresponding changes of purpose and plan. While the school must continue to furnish as a preparatory place for some one who would go high, it must become a last opportunity for formal training. Shall equal opportunity be denied because a vocational school of secondary grade is not practicable for every community? Can not the high school train and place and follow-up as do our trade schools? Yes--a beginning has been made; there is active scattered evidence.

The specialized vocational school will continue to flourish, particularly in the great cities. It will show a change as to emphasis in keeping with mechanical production and exchange. It will look to up-grading and by better selective standards, will become more effective in training for the management of commercial and industrial enterprises.

But, thoroughly scattered everywhere, newer and more potent, will stand the changed secondary school, a more comprehensive and a more democratic institution. Here will be opportunity for every youth.

CARS WILL BE RUN BY RADIO POWER BY END OF CENTURY

Gasoline Car Manufacturer Says Gas Engine Soon Will Be Obsolete

Indianapolis, Ind.—Automobiles of the future will be driven by electric motors and will receive their power by radio directly from centrally-located transmitting stations, each car owner being assigned a specific wave length.

This startling prediction is made by G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon Motor Car Company, in the midst of the nation's automobile show season featuring the latest gasoline-propelled vehicles.

"While I do not mean to adopt a radical position," says Williams, "I would say that possibly during the next generation and most certainly within the 20th century, the present type of automobile, powered with the present type of internal combustion engine, will be as obsolete as the dodo bird, the great auk and the great horned owl."

The source of power for these electric automobiles will be large, central generating stations similar to those which are at present in use for the generation of electric power for lights and other commercial purposes. This automobile power, however, will be transmitted by radio directly from the central station to the car itself.

"I can foresee with a reasonable degree of accuracy each automobile owner being assigned a specific power designation and that will be wave length and all that will be necessary for him to start his car will be to pull a switch on the instrument board, thereby automatically turning into the power wave which has been assigned to him. If his is an 80-horsepower motor car his maximum reception will be 80 horsepower and cars of this power will be controlled by a rheostat used like the accelerator of today.

WE WON'T ESCAPE TAX!

"As is the case today, these cars will be built in different horsepower and sizes and will be taxed accordingly. Motorists will not pay for more power than is used, inasmuch as a metering arrangement will be installed in each car which, at periodic intervals, will be checked by the power company for the purpose of making a charge for the power actually used.

"It is an established fact that automotive engineers long have attempted to attain as great a flexibility and economy in internal combustion engines as is possible to attain in electric motors, hence the increasing use of the eight-cylinder gasoline engine. The use of electric motors will attain flexibility and maneuverability to a superlative degree."

In predicting the universal use of electric motors in automobiles, Williams declares electric engineers would have to speed their efforts toward reducing their weight in order to be adopted in automobiles.

"Advantages which would accrue from this development," he continues, "will be speeding up of traffic conditions due to greater acceleration and deceleration; elimination of noxious fumes; minimizing of maintenance costs due to the relatively small number of moving parts in such electrical apparatus as compared to the present-day internal combustion engine; complete elimination of the problem of heating and cooling; work in the present internal combustion engine; simplicity of operation due to the elimination of all operating gadgets with the exception of the controller and switch, and the continued availability of power without replenishing fuel supply.

"MANY ON SAME WAVE"

"It may be said that the allocation of sufficient number of wave lengths to care for each automobile throughout the country will be impossible. But there is no reason why many cars cannot operate on the same wavelength, provided, however, that there are not too many to overload the particular wavelength to which they have been allocated. In other words, the charge problem would be to guard against the creation of too high a peak load.

"Aside from the many specific advantages of radio-operated automobiles from the standpoint of their individual utility and easier operation, there is every indication that the advent of such cars would result in major economies concerning our national wealth. Efficient production of power by central power stations will effect considerable savings in fuel, taking into consideration the fact that the average automobile owner does not run his engine to its maximum economic efficiency. It has been estimated that fully 30 per cent of the gasoline used in this country today is wasted by idling motors.

"The automobile of 1929 is more than twice as efficient and economical as the automobile of 1900. The automobile of 1939 as compared to the automobile of today will bear a far greater ratio than this in these essential factors."

also rejected an amendment by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, proposing to increase the authorization for air craft carriers from one to three.

Washington—(AP)—Although President Coolidge does not approve of the cruiser construction bill, with the time restriction clause included, he does not wish to be understood as saying positively that he will veto the measure.

The president feels that had the time clause been eliminated the measure could have been passed by the senate in a few hours, with the result that by now the work of making appropriations for building the ships would be well underway. The time clause would stipulate that the construction of the 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier be started before July 1, 1931.

Mr. Coolidge believes that there is some confusion in the minds of senators over the proposal to take out the time limit. He feels this is regarded as a proposal to postpone construction of the vessels until the time restriction, while making appropriations for starting work on a substantial number of the vessels at once.

CAL LOSES POINT

The senate passed a vote Tuesday on the cruiser construction bill after sidetracking by an overwhelming majority Monday the request of President Coolidge to have eliminated the time clause in the measure requiring construction on the ships called for to begin before July 1, 1931.

The bill now carries the provision voted by the house that five of the sixteen cruisers shall be put under way during this fiscal year, ending next June 30; five the following year and five during the next year, ending June 30, 1931. The $19,000,000 aircraft carrier also shall be started during this period.

Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, offered the amendment to strike out the time limitation provision and to give the president a free hand in putting under way the construction of the ships prior to July 1, 1932. It was defeated on the first and only roll call so far on the bill by a vote of 54 to 28. Twenty-six Republicans turned against the proposal and 28 Democrats voted with them. Harrison was supported by 16 Republicans, 11 Democrats and the farmer-labor, Shipstead, of Minnesota.

The farmers have stated a preference and have asked for service from the Kaukauna company.

The other farm, consisting of 60 acres, was sold to Nettie Monty for $6,685. It was owned by Joe Monty, and the mortgage was held by T. S. Davis, who secured a foreclosure judgment here in municipal court on Dec. 7, 1927. This farm is located in the town of Deer Creek.

U. S. AND EUROPE FIGHT FOR TRADE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Country Still Remains Highly Competitive Market for Rest of World

BY RODNEY DUTCHER (Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.) Washington—South America still remains a highly competitive market. European nations are determined to regain what they can of the proportionate share of South America's import trade which they have lost to us in the last 15 years.

Leaving aside the complicated question of tariffs, it may be said that the struggle for this trade in the last few years has been a case of our efficient mass production methods pitted against the cheaper production costs of Europe. With better organization and more efficient methods in Europe, the real fight may be yet to come. A few expensive manufacturers are now bearing the export load which now gives us the largest share of imports in this territory.

Paper Box Board Makers Asked To Limit Output

Washington—(AP)—An appeal to paper box board manufacturers to maintain restrictions on output and reduce competition in the interest of labor was made at a conference of the industry here Tuesday by Secretary Davis of the labor department.

By repeated conference undertakings since 1924, leading elements in the industry have agreed to limit production, and reduce working time. Secretary Davis said, but have been unsuccessful in attaining their desired ends because not all makers would stick to the five-day week. During the past few months he said the number of mills conforming to the Washington agreement of 1924 has lessened, and because of the strenuous efforts being made by non-conforming mills to secure sufficient business, prices on box boards have dropped to a ruinous level.

LOSES TEAM, 4,300 POUNDS COAL THRU ICE ON WOLF RIVER

Gilbert Minton, Weyauwega, lost two horses, 4,300 pounds of coal and a sleigh when his team broke through the ice on the Wolf river at Gill's landing, near Weyauwega, at about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Mr. Minton, who was alone, also was thrown into the water, but he succeeded in pulling himself back on firm ice again. He was able to free his horses from the sleigh, but could not pull them out of the water.

Mr. Minton had started to cross the river to make a short-cut. With the heavy load of coal, and with a team weighing approximately 3,200 pounds, the strain on the ice was too much, and it gave way near the bridge at Gill's Landing.

The horses, which were worth about $500, were insured for $400, according to Mr. Minton.

At High Council MICROSCOPE SPEEDS CHEMICAL ANALYSES

Ithaca, N. Y.—(AP)—Cornell University has developed methods to speed up chemical analyses, ordinarily among the slowest of occupations. Many laborious analyses have been eliminated by using a microscope to study reactions which have been invisible hitherto.

The chemist of a salt concern having difficulty in removing foreign particles from its product, employed analytical methods for two days without getting a satisfactory answer. Then he went to Prof. E. M. Chamot, of the department of chemistry at Cornell, who has developed the course in microscope study.

Two minutes with a microscope showed that nearly 40 per cent of the white substance was not salt, but gypsum.

VENGEANCE FIRES INDIAN FIGHTERS IN MEXICAN HILLS

Father Whose Child Was Kidnaped Determined to Capture Apache Band

Douglas, Ariz.—Nearly a half century after Geronimo led his marauding Apache Indians down into old Mexico just prior to his capture by General Miles, a band of direct descendants of his bloodthirsty warriors are making their last stand against civilization today.

In the wild and desolate Sierra Madre mountains south of the border here, the war to exterminate the redskins is on. Indian fighters are on the trail again and the fighting is being staged much as it was in the frontier days of the southwest two generations ago.

The Mexican government has decreed that the reign of terror caused by the Apaches' pillaging raids on peaceful American and Mexican ranches along the border must cease. To this end it has commissioned a posse which set out recently from Agua Prieta—just across the international boundary from Douglas—to kill or capture every member of the band.

Francisco Fimbres, a rancher, is the leader of the posse. The scenes of the shifting battle—which would make a western movie thriller look tame—are laid from 40 to 60 miles southeast of Douglas in the Bavispe river valley and extend back in the Sierra Madre to the boundary line between the Mexican states of Chihuahua and Sonora.

MISSION OF VENGEANCE
More than a spirit of adventure fires Fimbres as leader of the party determined to kill or capture the Indians. It is a spirit of vengeance, nursed for two years, against the redskins who murdered his wife and kidnapped his child. Above all, he hopes to find the boy safe and sound. It was with this motive that he persuaded Governor Fausto Topete for authority to stage the thrilling man-hunt. The governor granted this on recommendation of Rogelio Loreto, presidente of the city of Agua Prieta.

While the hunt is on, a dark-eyed young woman of Apache blood who plays a big part in the drama waits silently in the little village of Nacori Chico in the shadow of the high mountains where the Indians have their remote hiding places. Her name is Lupe—nothing more. Secretly, she hopes that the expedition will fail.

CAPTURE INDIAN GIRL
Back in 1914 when a posse of cowboys was chasing a band of raiding Apaches, a battle ensued. The Indians escaped but not until the ranchers had killed several and captured a 14-year-old girl of the tribe. Francisco Fimbres was a member of this party. The girl was Lupe. Many times since then efforts have been made to find the wild girl of the hills, but the love for her people has defied the whites' efforts. Civilization is not for her.

Once, after she had grown to maidenhood, Lupe set out with a party to show them where vast deposits of gold could be found in the mountains. They traveled for several days. Finally, the smoke of an Indian camp was seen in the distance. One of the party was rash enough to threaten the Indians in Lupe's presence. Immediately, Lupe refused to go a step further or give another word of information—and the hunt was off.

INDIANS STEAL CHILD
Enraged by the capture of Lupe, the Indians struck back against the ranchers for years. A little over two years ago they at last wreaked their revenge on Fimbres, whom they blamed most for the girl's capture. On a return trip from Naco, Sonora, Fimbres and his family were attacked by a howling, blood-thirsty band. The Indians murdered Senora Fimbres by cutting her throat and made off with Fimbres' year-old son, whom they snatched from the dying mother's arms. Fimbres and a small daughter escaped injury.

The Apaches had taken their revenge on Fimbres as a leader of the cowboys who had stolen their Lupe.

Since that time the desire for vengeance and the hope of recovering his little son from the Indians has burned deep within Fimbres. Frequently he pleaded with Mexican government authorities for permission to organize a posse and go after the Apaches. Recently this plea was granted and Fimbres was officially commissioned as head of the party.

No one knows definitely what is going on back in the narrow mountain passes today as Fimbres' party pursues the redskins, but reports brought out by runners say that engagements have taken place far back in the mountain fastness. This is a wild and uncivilized country and believed to be the refuge of many American criminals, as searching parties there have found old magazines, newspapers and tobacco cans around abandoned camp fires.

Therapies does not contain iron, calomel or any other harmful or dangerous medicine. Also excellent for coughs, croup, them almost instantly. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back. $5c, 60c, and $1.00. All drug stores.

Unsnarl Debt

Two of the country's greatest financiers probably will be selected as the American members of the International Commission of Experts which is to meet in Europe next month to consider the readjustment of German reparations. They are J. P. Morgan, top, and Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, and co-author of the Dawes plan.

It is believed that outlaws have fled there from the southwest. Douglas—and the whole Mexican border—awaits the outcome of the Indian pursuits with tense interest. Those who are familiar with the situation say that it will be a race to a finish—that neither the Indians nor the vengeful Fimbres will ask or give quarter.

EXCESS ACID SICKENS—GET RID OF IT!

Sour stomach, indigestion, gas. These are signs which usually mean just one thing: excess acid. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. Too much acid is making food sour in the stomach and intestines. The way to correct excess acid is with an alkali. The best form of alkali for this purpose is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Just take a spoonful of this harmless, almost tasteless preparation in a glass of water. It works instantly. The stomach becomes sweet. You are happy again in five minutes! Your heartburn, gas, headache, biliousness or indigestion has vanished!

Know Phillips' Milk of Magnesia and you're through with crude methods forever. It is the pleasant way—the efficient way to alkalinize the system: to relieve the effects of over-acidity.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has been standard with doctors for over 50 years. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores. Be sure you get the genuine. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

Kindergarten Students Preparing "For A Trip"

ERORBDFOORDEBOBOBHR — any other project could provide as much fun or field for original thought on the part of the children. The bus itself lacks no detail. There is a body and an engine, swinging windows and a ladder in back to facilitate the packing away of suitcases on the rack on top; steering wheel and brakes, lights, license plates and bumper—and even a modified version of the ticket box. On their daily rides, fares are paid with blue, white and red chips, carried in the two purses which are a part of the kindergarten's "toolkit". The two people who carry the purses are elevated to the rank of "mother and father," and the rest of the class goes as the children, who pay only half-fare.

After much pensive thought and a little hesitation, one bright youngster suggests the obvious—a night-gown. But with that suggestion comes another problem—"what will you carry your nightie in?" This is a more intricate thing to solve, but after the usual amount of deliberation someone bursts forth with "a suitcase."

Having no traveling bags of their own, there is only one thing to do, and so the construction of luggage from cigar boxes is immediately started. The boxes are painted and mothers old shoes are confiscated to supply leather trappings.

MUST TAKE DOLLS
But there are other difficulties. The dolls must be taken along also, and as they couldn't possibly go in their everyday clothes, this led to the sewing of entire new outfits for each of the dolls.

The preparation for the trip is going to take several weeks, and after the trip has been made time will be devoted to the recounting of things seen and experienced on the trip. After that is over with, First Ward children will be ready for a new block project, but it is doubtful if

BORE THRU MOUNTAIN TO GET WATERPOWER

Italian Engineers Perform
Feat to Save Large Quantity of Coal

Rome—(AP)—Burrowing through a mountain 2,000 feet above its base and 3,000 below its peak, Italian engineers have completed a water tunnel three and a half miles long and seven feet thick, designed to save Italy the equivalent of 750,000 tons of coal annually by creating a new source of electric power.

The tunnel extends from Lake Lerdo, in the Italian Alps, through Monte Oro to the eastern slope of the mountain, where pipes carry it down to the Adige-Garda power station on the shores of Lake Garda.

The bore takes advantage in the difference in elevation of the two lakes. Lerdo lies at 2,150 feet and is fed by rain, snow and glaciers. Lake Garda is 250 feet above sea level.

After emerging from the tunnel the water drops on a slant almost 2,000 feet—three times the height of the Woolworth building in New York—through pipes which terminate in specially constructed turbines. The water strikes with too great a force to pass directly through turbines. The water wheels therefore are set like the paddle wheels of a steamer, the water entering from below and whirling completely around with the wheels. At the end of its circuit the water is diverted into drain pipes.

2. At Contract, the bidding should be: South one Spade, West two Hearts, North three Spades, East pass, South four Spades.

3. The Declarer, after losing trick 1 and winning trick 2, could exhaust the adverse trumps and cash the three high Diamonds in Dummy, which would give him a total of nine tricks—one short of game. If the adverse Diamonds are evenly divided, Dummy, being in the lead, could continue leading Diamonds, winning two more Diamond tricks and taking a total of eleven tricks; but played in that way, if the adverse Diamonds should be divided

4-2 (more probable than 3-3), Declarer would fail to make game as he would lose three Club tricks.

He needs two discards and his safer play is to lead high trumps from the South hand to tricks 3 and 4. If both adversaries follow suit on both tricks, he should lead Diamonds to tricks 5 and 6, winning both in Dummy; and to trick 7, lead a low Diamond from Dummy, ruffing high in Closed Hand. To trick 8, put Dummy in with the King of trumps to make the remaining Diamonds, which then would be winners.
